As many of you have noticed, we are running late with this issue of The Follow Up. Though PIRCO is a multi-faceted organization with many diverse personalities each adding their own unique essence to the mix, we are still also very much a one man show. When Howard stops, to a certain extent PIRCO stops. For the past few weeks, Howard has been undergoing a battery of tests, and by the time you read this will have had semi-major surgery.

Because of the distractions of going to doctors, as well as the physical and mental debilitation of a serious illness, his contributions to The Follow Up, always the core of each issue, have been delayed. The other PIRCO Charter members have chipped in with articles to take some of the load off Howard, and we hope that all will be back to normal by next issue.

We understand that it is human nature to be both concerned and curious about the illnesses of those we care about, but we ask you to remember that over 800 people will be reading this. Please do not call or bother the office staff or attempt to call Howard or Mary at home. Even the best intentioned call can be intensely annoying to someone recovering from surgery, especially if it is the 30th of the day. Howard has also asked that you not send flowers, candy etc. as he is quite sure that he will be fine, and has no intention of letting illness get in the way of what he wants to accomplish. He is still planning to lead the troops to Saratoga.

However, I would like to ask you to please take it easy on him for the next couple of months and not bury him with your problems. Until he is 100%, please refer your problems to the PIRCO Charter members nearest you. Jim Bradshaw will be manning "Dial-A-Hat" at (918) 627-7161, and I am available most days and evenings at (818) 546-8978. Those who are having problems with the ENERGY! program and want a detailed analysis of several races are asked to contact Michael Pizzolla at 333 E. 90th #4-H, New York, NY 10128. Michael asks that you include a blank audio cassette for his answers.

We have all over the years come to consider PIRCO as a part of the family, a big friendly family that talks about horses a lot. It is a shock when "Dad" gets sick. I'm sure you'll join me in hoping that Howard is back to normal as soon as possible. I'm sure he'd like to know that you're thinking of him. Cards and letters should be sent to the Institute office. I doubt that he'll have time to answer each one, but I know that they will cheer him up.

Thank you for your patience and understanding.

A NOTE FROM THE PUBLISHER.

PLAYING THE FREE-FOLLOW-UP GAME OF "HELPLESS"

The Follow Up journal got its name from the practice we began when we went public in 1981. We afforded each client the opportunity to obtain free help with their Methodology handicapping problems via mail or phone. We stipulated that clients send no more than three losing races with their pace-lines underlined; include their readouts AND results charts so we could evaluate the odds and the ultimate value of our responses. The free Follow Up was designed to provide back up support to those whose perception of our written material was vague or needed augmenting through an analysis of specific procedures.

About two thirds of our clients accepted it as such and complied with the prescribed follow up rules. The other 33% regaled us with subjective values denouncing our concepts; pointing out spelling and/or numerical errors, typos, etc. Many spent hours of research to show that our numbers were off by from .04 to .16. This 33% has been reduced to about 10% over the years but we still have some clients who get more kick out of criticizing factors that have little to do with success or failure at the races, than they would from winning.

While the number of people seriously seeking follow-up HELP has diminished, their principle problem has NOT. That problem, as perceived by clients, is narrowing the field to seldom more than five contenders and selecting appropriate pace lines. Note that I said "Appropriate" not RIGHT! In most contender's past performances we will find MORE than ONE line which is predictive of that animals performance today.

Jim "The Hat" Bradshaw added a new dimension to our free Follow-Up service when he took on the "Dial A Hat" phone service. No one I have ever met in ANY field, including the healing arts, has ever been more true a cause than Jimmy has through "Dial A Hat." He receives from 20 to 40 calls a day (when he's not at the races or doing a seminar) and answers each one succinctly and to the clients satisfaction. A majority of the calls genuinely seek assistance in specific areas BUT, of late, all too many are directed at Contender and Pace line selection. Jimmy requests that these folks send him some races they've done and lost. Many times when he gets them, he finds the client has used from SEVEN TO NINE CONTENDERS in each race and complain that their third and fourth "choices" are winning. Jimmy's answer to this persistent refusal to adhere to our contender/match up procedures is in the 1989 ALBANY/SARATOGA manual and will be reproduced in the next Follow Up.

The chief reason clients have for using so many contenders is that they regard a horse race like a roulette wheel. On the wheel EVERY NUMBER, including 0 and 00, has a one in 38 chance of receiving the bouncing ball. In a horse race this IS NOT TRUE! If you cannot accept this fact one should abandon horses and play roulette!

The fact is that 87% of the time only about THREE contenders have a chance of winning the race. The other 13% of the races are marginally playable to all but advanced clients and are usually eschewed by even Pirco Charter members with conservative tendencies. The reason we offer a latitude of FIVE contenders is for inclusion of the PLACE horse, which offers a wider range of profit potential.

In the past few months the Institute has conducted a series of five trackside seminars encompassing the length and breadth of the United States: Santa Anita,(Los Angeles) Longacres,(Seattle) Monmouth, (New Jersey) AKSARBEN, (Omaha Neb.) and ARLINGTON (Chicago). We handicapped and invested in virtually EVERY NON-MAIDEN race. A total of 14 racing days counting the extra days that the "Hat" and I stayed over to work with clients. In those 14 days of racing we flat out had 13 days of winning 70% or better. One Day, in Omaha, we lost three in a row and most attendees only broke even or even lost a few dollars.

The old hands, led by Elton Smith, made money that day because of bet sizing and ignoring what they considered non-playable races. Dave Lewis, of Denver, thought it was a sensational day. He won a $920 trifecta. He got the high paying WINNER in that trifecta by properly applying APV. The show horse he got through proper 3rd fraction evaluation. Overall, handicapping with teaching member Tom Renner, he won 18 of 25 races in the three days he was with us in Omaha.

Copping out of handicapping certain races by designating them as non playable is foreign to my philosophy, as it is to Jim "The Hat's." As a result we failed to produce a desired proficiency on that ONE day in fourteen.

In those fourteen days we applied a SINGLE, unaltered procedure for picking pace-lines and contenders. In a total of 90 races at five distinctly different types of tracks, we FAILED to include the winner in our FIVE designated contenders per race a total of only SIX TIMES (3 in one day). That's a inclusion percentage of 94% Of the 90 races handicapped our top TWO choices won 65 for a net win percentage of 72%. And that was SELECTING EVERY NON-MAIDEN RACE on every card! NO COP OUTS!

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

What procedure did we use for contender and pace line selection?

ONE...and ONE only. (Call it a rule if you like.) It is a FOUR STEP procedure we used unequivocally and without exception! For ALL HORSES in the race apply the following:

1: A.P.V./Class rating.
2: O, + and @.
3: E.S.P.
4: P.B.S. Analysis.

That's it. PERIOD! Failing to apply these four steps is counter Methodology. All additional steps, counterproductive. Clients who fail to follow this procedure and as for free help will be reminded at future help will be forthcoming ONLY to those who DO follow this procedure. All too many of you are discounting these procedures in favor of something you read in a book by some so-called expert. (Editor's Note: For a complete discussion on this procedure, see the article in this issue on Picking Contenders.)

We make ONE EXCEPTION to this: If YOU are winning 70% or better doing it YOUR WAY, you can employ any damned procedure you like. In fact, if you wish to give lessons, I'll buy them. I'll take any amount of criticism or suggested adaptations from a WINNER. Not from a LOSER. So until you're winning I strongly urge you to comply with proven winning procedures.

Here is a simple procedure that will open your eyes to your hidden potential in evaluating races and in predicting winners. It's an insight/intuition exercise that has produced amazing results for all who have taken it under MY direction. In Employing it under you OWN DIRECTION you must be as stringent in applying the rules as you would were I supervision you. It's entitled, YOU CALL THE RACE. To date, under clinical testing procedures 15% of each audience has blocked. In other, words, refused to take the test. Of the remaining 85%, 67% have included the winner AND the place horse in their top 5 (Most only end up by doing 4 horses) 68% of the time. At Huey Mahl's July Length Variant Seminar in Las Vegas, 71% of the ENTIRE GROUP had the Winner and Place horse in their TOP THREE! However, I gave them a race with only six entrants showing.

Do this exercise over and over on RACES YET TO BE RUN ONLY! No back races. You will be astounded at the growing number of winners and place horses you will predict using Eyeball SCAN ALONE!

YOU CALL THE RACE

A handicapping analysis and match-up technique using the most formidable computer program of all:

EYEBALL SCAN

We first tried this procedure at a Beaumont Clinic dedicated to Win Therapy. Persons who had convinced themselves they had little cognisance or insight into how a race would be run, found themselves exceeding in an area where they thought they were inadequate.

For those who beg for RULES, THIS procedure has some:

1 - You MUST do this BEFORE the race, with NO knowlege of the results.

2 - Allow yourself just 6 MINUTES for pre-race notations and analysis.

3 - Now, out-loud, just like your favorite track announcer, CALL THE RACE from starting gate to wire. Include as many as the top 5 by position at each call, including the stretch. Some will be able to get it down to four, then Three, as your skills improve.

4- Allow yourself NO longer than THREE TIMES the actual running time of the race to make your position calls and to fill out the form.
i.e. A six furlong race with a projected running time of 1:12 should take NO MORE than THREE MINUTES and 36 seconds

5- When your time is up STOP. Seek improvements in subsequent races.

6- TIME yourself exactly. Do not Fudge.
Soon you'll be able to CALL THE RACE in just a little over the time it takes to run. Allowing for your having to write down your observations. (even as your track annouucer does.)

THE OBJECT: Get the WINNER and ultimately the PLACE horse in your FINAL TOP 5.

Please send us some filled out forms for review
Note the results.

ENERGY! ™

We now have almost ten percent of our clients using the new, advanced ENERGY! (TM) program. Copyrighted, patented and trademarked. AND expensive. Many of you have heard about the wondrous results others are getting with this 21st century approach. You want in.

However, most of you are not ready. It requires a personal evaluation of your Attitude, NOT your skills, by myself or Jim Bradshaw. With a growing base of highly successful ENERGY! users to assist us in teaching and supervising potential new users, we can expand of the current number, but SLOWLY.

To satisfy the ongoing needs of ENERGY! users, we will devote a part of The Follow Up every issue to ENERGY!. If you are interested, we require a personal interview to determine your eligibility. We turn down about 65% of the requests we get. Here is one such turn down of a person with an unrealistic attitude who requested ENERGY!

* * * * * * * *

Dear ---------

Sorry that you missed Chicago. We faced a difficult card but managed to give the attendees 6 winners in 8 races.

Energy is the ultimate handicapping weapon to date. But if one cannot narrow the contenders in a field down to the five logical in-the-money candidates, it will produce no better results than what you are now using. I feel that is it essential for you to take a long look at your true goals. If you decide that handicapping is the field you wish to master, then stop playing the game of "helpless" and begin your mastery. Reread your manuals on contender and pace line selection. Learn the essence of the match-up. In other words, go to work just as you went to work in earning your teaching credentials.

"Do me something" is a game for non effectual people. Be effectual. Start winning. Quit whining. It is being done every day by people with half your brains. Use those brains. Start with the exercise in the enclosed Las Vegas Manual - starting on page 107. Do it before the fact, race after race until you have the winner and place horse in your final four 85% of the time. Others are doing this with amazing success. So can you if you truly WANT to. When you have successfully applied this exercise 100 times we'll talk more about advanced programs.

Best,

Sartin

The Editor's Column

by Dick Schmidt

As Howard mentions in this issue, the group testing ENERGY! has grown in recent months to include almost 10% of our clients. Originally, it was our intention to limit the number to a select few scattered throughout the country and carefully analyze their results at as many tracks as possible before any widespread release. However, news of the fantastic results being achieved by users spread, and for the past few months many clients have been clamoring for a chance to try ENERGY!.

ENERGY! is nearing completion. Even as I write, our programing elves are hard at work in Tulsa putting the finishing touches on the program. A (hopefully) final version should be ready in the fall, followed by a complete manual. For the time being, access to the ENERGY! program is on an individual case by case basis until a support structure is in place, but as more clients see the program in action, the number of users is bound to grow. It is truly a breakthrough program, promising to advance handicapping further than anything has since the original Phase III program was perfected. ENERGY! is even more revolutionary than Ultra-Scan, and promises to be the benchmark against which all else in handicapping is compared.

In response to the growing number of those using ENERGY!, and to prepare the rest of us for the future, The Follow Up will start a regular feature on the ENERGY! program in each issue. It has been pointed out to me that The Follow Up has slighted Ultra-Scan users in the past, rarely mentioning the program or its special features and problems. I can only reply by saying that Ultra-Scan, as well as several other promising programs, was buried by the Synergism landslide, and today only a few clients are still using it. I can promise that the same will not happen with ENERGY!.

On the other hand, we will not forget those who chose to stay with the more logical, linear type of handicapping represented by Phase III and Synergism. And of course, the work of qualifying contenders and picking pace lines goes on no matter what program you are using. As sophisticated as ENERGY! is, it remains true that 90% of your work should be done before you turn your computer on.

Right now, the Methodology is in a state of flux, with monumental changes going on. Our whole outlook on handicapping is moving to a much more non-linear, non-traditional position. It has happened before, and doubtless will happen again in a couple of years. When I first joined PIRCO, it was pretty well split between those who used and liked Phase III and the new wave of Ultra-Scan users. Today, both programs have been more or less left behind by Synergism II, which combines aspects of both.

This is not a destructive process, though it can be a confusing one. Cries of "Which program is BEST?" will echo across the land.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

Eventually, just when we are all getting comfortable with our choices, Doc and Jim will spring Deceleration on us. Such is the rocky road to the future we have all chosen to take. As far as ENERGY! is concerned, the future starts with this issue.

In the past three years, Jim Bradshaw has produced at least 200 different versions of ENERGY!, each representing a small step towards perfection. We may never reach perfection, but we're closer than we were three years ago. Michael Pizzolla and I were the first clients to ever use the ENERGY! program, and we have both struggled with it and fought it. Michael struggled more than any other user, losing bankrolls with it, cursing it, abandoning it, then taking it back, improving it and finally mastering it. Today he is the most advanced user of the ENERGY! program, and it is fitting that after all his trials he should be the one to officially introduce and describe it to you. He earned the privilege.

We are fast approaching the end of our third year of publishing The Follow Up. How time flies. It was always intended as a way of keeping in contact with our far flung clientele, not as a profit making contrivance. To this end, we have not raised our prices in three years, despite two increases in our printing costs and a major cost increase from the Post Office. Unfortunately, we are again facing a major rise in printing costs, paper costs and mailing preparation fees. Therefore, we are forced to bow to reality and raise our prices by $1.00 an issue.

Starting with issue 19, which will be out in January, 1990, the cost of a subscription to The Follow Up will be $72 a year. We will stay with the same 6 issues per year. First class postage will increase to $2.50 per issue, as I now have to pay to have it prepared. There are just too many for me to do it by myself as I used to, and we are currently losing money on this operation as well. Also, from now on, all Canadian subscriptions will require payment of first class postage, as the Post Office will not deliver third class mail out of the U.S. Those of you who have paid for subscriptions that continue on past issue 18 will continue to receive the remainder of your subscription at the old price. However, all new subscriptions and renewals will be at the new price.

We're sorry about this increase, and hope that The Follow Up is valuable enough to all of you to justify it. We will attempt to maintain our high standards and continue to bring you whatever you need to win; both at thoroughbred handicapping and at life.

The Enlightmentment of the Parimutuel Investor:

The Journey from Velocity to ENERGY!

by Michael Pizzolla

". . . from darkness lead us to light:
from unhappiness to bliss:
from ignorance to enlightenment."
- Katha Upanishad

The ENERGY! program is not merely a different program or a reworking or recompounding of incremental velocity measurements. Those of you fortunate enough to be working with, testing, or investing with the ENERGY! program have, no doubt, an idea of the power of the program. It is precisely because the program eschews the use of velocity that it works. For the last five years, in every serious conversation that I've had with Howard about the future direction of the Methodology, he has reechoed these themes: 1) velocity is dead; 2) future programs of the Methodology will focus on energy relationships and deceleration; and 3) such insights, along with the new language which evolves with them will be necessary for those who are serious about deriving an income from parimutuel investing.

During the past few years, Howard has introduced these ideas in the context of the Sartin Methodology. As you might imagine, such revolutionary concepts have been met with a certain amount of derision. The supposed cognoscenti shook their heads and grinned the insipid grin of the terminally resistant. Even among the inner circle of PIRCO experts, there were a few raised eyebrows and expressions of doubt concerning these concepts.

Leaving the security blanket of velocity and the familiar readouts of Phase III has been traumatic, cathartic and ultimately rewarding for virtually everyone who has dared make the step into the future. The journey has not, in all cases, been smooth. From my personal experience, I can tell you that I have had moments of doubts, of longing for the old ways. This has been doubly difficult for me since, as a Charter Member, I have been charged with the responsibility of being conversant with all of the programs and procedures of the Methodology. Developing shortcuts, such as projecting a reasonable pace for the race (my "fulcrum" concept) and the development of PBS numbers has proven helpful for those struggling with contender selection and a rudimentary understanding of the effect of the pace of the race. They were not meant to supplant the more refined, the more esoteric work of the Methodology.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

Despite the many caveats in my article on PBS in The Follow Up, I have gotten reports of people using them exclusively for contender selection and even betting on the top two PBS numbers as their selections. For those doing so, I wish you well, but do not think for a moment that you are employing the Sartin Methodology. Similarly, Tom Hambleton has reawakened interest in the importance of the third fraction. However, his rankings were never meant to stand alone or be used to the exclusion of the other aspects of the Methodology. To the extent that clients have used the pace Match-Up, PBS numbers and third fraction ratings to supplant a firm understanding of the Methodology, these techniques represent a giant step backwards.

This brings us to the central point of all of this: from where has the Methodology come, to where is it heading, and where does ENERGY! fit in? To answer this, I'd like to go a little far afield and talk a bit about the classical description of the seven states of consciousness which describe the journey of the individual from the darkness of suffering to the awakened state of full enlistment, where the individual is using 100% of his mental potential instead of the typical 5 to 10% estimated by modern psychologists. If you will bear with me, I think the parallels are striking.

The first three states of consciousness are those with which we are most familiar: sleeping, dreaming and waking. The fourth is the state of transcendence which is beyond those three. This state, the state of restful alertness where the mind is completely awake and the body is more rested than the deepest point of deep sleep, is achieved in meditation. This is where the term Transcendental Meditation comes from. TM is a technique which affords access to this fourth state of consciousness.

After repeated exposure of the nervous system to the fourth state of consciousness, that state of expanded consciousness begins to permeate the fields of sleeping, waking and dreaming so that it is no longer transcendental, but now coexists along with the other three. For that reason, the fifth state of consciousness is known as cosmic, or all inclusive, consciousness. After the nervous system has achieved this style of functioning, the next stage involves refining the machinery of perception. This sixth state of refined, all inclusive consciousness gives way in time to the seventh state of unity consciousness in which all things are integrated and there is no longer a felt separation between the self and the environment.

You may wonder what this has to do the Methodology. I have been struck with the remarkable similarity in the progression of the concepts of the Methodology with the seven states of consciousness. Phase I of the Methodology dealt with the raw fractions, with numbers such as 22 3/5, 24 2/5 and 25 flat to describe the incremental fractions in a six furlong paceline. From the perspective of the point to which the Methodology has currently evolved, I think this phase can be likened to the sleep state of consciousness. PBS numbers, raw third fraction ratings, and the like belong in these dark ages.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

Phase II was an attempt to refine these measurements by using feet per second. We talked about fractions of 58.41, 54.10 and 51.56 for example. This was closer, but as in dreaming, not always reflective of reality. The jump to waking state of consciousness was made in Phase III, which involved compounding the fractional velocities to usable, predictable variables, such as Early Pace, Sustained Pace and Factor W. This compounding, which in itself lessened the importance of structural and surface variants, along with a set of mathematically correct values for the distance in feet for beaten lengths, and the addition of Percent Early (the first expression of energy relationships) made Phase III a viable, profitable approach for those willing to use it carefully. Waking state, 63% winners, had been achieved.

It was not until the examination of percentile relationships between the pace of horses and the pace of the race they ran in that the first "transcendental" readouts of the Methodology were available. Ultra Scan, a sometimes maligned program, marked a truly radical step. It was Howard's first step away from velocity and into percentile relationships. Thus, a horse who wired a field in slow time would receive a high rating because the relationship between the horse's pace and the pace of the race was 100%. I think this is analogous to the fourth, or transcendental, state of consciousness. The word transcendental comes from the Latin trascere, which means to go beyond. The percentile readouts of Ultra Scan were truly beyond those of velocity, since the rate of velocity was used only in determining how competitive a horse was against the pace of its race.

It was this breakthrough which has given rise to the more advanced phases of the Methodology, just as exposure to the fourth state of consciousness in meditation gives rise to higher states of consciousness in the human nervous system. Much of the discontent of Ultra Scan came from two sources: those who continued to put slow horses into their computer, and those so fixed in their position about velocity that they were unable to appreciate the elegance and effectiveness of Ultra Scan. Before ENERGY!, Ultra Scan was, in my opinion, the most significant program offered by Dr. Sartin.

However, despite the advance which Ultra Scan represented, there was a real drawback; the problem of slow horses. Many of the techniques of the Match-Up were designed in direct response to clients who were having difficulty with the Phase I aspect of the Methodology and were considering slow horses as true win contenders. To the extent that these techniques were helpful to our understanding, they are great successes. Some clients became so proficient with just these techniques, however, that they lost their focus which should have been on most refined aspects of the Methodology. The question remained: could a program be developed which used the radical understanding of Ultra Scan, yet remain sensitive enough to the crude velocity issues in a race?

The answer, after years of Herculean effort by Howard and Jim Bradshaw, after countless hours of long distance telephone calls, after thousands of dollars of research and development costs, and after thousands of races analyzed by the stalwart group of testers, the answer is YES! ENERGY! is an enlightened program in that insights necessary from velocity coexist with the percentile relationships of Ultra Scan. Instead of making adjustments in comparison to some arbitrary standard, ENERGY! will make adjustments based on the "dream race" of the contenders, as well as their total energy. These are the most accurate, reality-based adjustments extant. They allow some remarkably predictive readouts.

One group of readouts in particular, Early and Sustained Match-Up Variegates (Emuv and Smuv), plus the Ultimate Energy Recovery (uXr), have proven so predictive that Howard has said that there is nothing else in any other program that can equal the power of these readouts. The Variegation, or coloring of a race (i.e. predicting how the race will run) can be determined accurately based on the ENERGY! adjustments and the MUV values. Such information is invaluable in determining when a race is likely to supersede the limits of your track profile because the composition of a given race imposes its own requirements.. The value of Percent Median, which has now superseded Percent Early in all our programs, allows unparalleled accuracy in determining a horse's Energy expenditure pattern and a track's requirements. ENERGY!, the Methodology's Phase V, is parallel to the fifth state of consciousness in that it is inclusive of all the other phases of the Methodology.

Although we really haven't started on Phases 6 and 7 yet, here is a preview of what to expect sometime in the 1990's. Phase VI, like the sixth state of consciousness, will be marked by refined perception. This will be achieved in part by examining ENERGY!'s measurement of a horse's deceleration, balanced with it's Energy exertion. The seventh phase will mark a synthesis, or unification, of all the previous six phases in a manner such that the whole is greater than the sum of the parts and the understanding of the whole process of handicapping and parimutuel investing is seamless.

For now, ENERGY! still represents the future for most of us. Those who chose to continue our journey into the future with PIRCO can look forward to more and more powerful programs, each requiring that we not only learn the new, but that we also forget the old. ENERGY! is only the first step.

I find it both startling and sad that there are many people in PIRCO who are better handicappers than I am, yet who don't approach earning the amount of money I manage to make at the track. It is so tempting to believe that once you learn to handicap, you will be a winner, but reality can be different. The truth is that very few bettors, in or out of PIRCO, have a professional attitude towards investing at the track.

Men and women who would shop all over town to get the best rate on a bank account or loan seem to lose all power of rational decision making when they get in line to make a bet. At our recent Trackside Clinic at Santa Anita I saw several disturbing examples of this. On both Saturday and Sunday, I spent a lot of time chatting with clients about the card and how they were going to play each race. Their handicapping was generally excellent, but very few of them seemed to have any sort of a betting plan.

My personal experience at the Clinic was a study in contrasts. On Saturday, I had one of the best days I have ever had at a racetrack. I took a $400 bankroll and ran it to over $1,600. Every decision I made was perfect. Sunday I returned to earth. On Sunday, it seemed every decision I made was wrong. I lost a photo by 4 inches, bet win when I should have been betting show, show when I should have had the winner. A tough day for me, though many of the clients had much better days on Sunday than they did on Saturday. Jim Bradshaw did "OK" on Saturday, but swept the card on Sunday. It wasn't the races, it was me.

OK, I can accept that. Some days things just don't work out. I was tired and short on sleep. Anyway, let's get back to decision making and betting: on Saturday, the PIRCO Charter members went over the races with the group prior to the races and it seemed that every call we made was right. Our analysis of the first race was tossed out the window when our pacesetter and the most sustained horse in the race were both late scratches, but we hit the next 6 non-maiden races in a row. The daily triple was easily getable with a $12 ticket, and quite a few of the folks I was sitting with had it.

Unfortunately for a lot of bankrolls, the one race we really blew was the ninth. A clean miss. Our two prime horses, the ones we thought had the best shot in the race, didn't hit the board. OK, again I can live with that. Win six, lose one. Seems about right to me. Unfortunately, many people were so cocky by that time that they forgot any semblance of money management and became plungers. Two clients who were sitting a few rows in front of me were ahead about $600 and $700 dollars respectively when we all headed down to bet the ninth. Our top pick in the race was holding at 16 to 1, and we were all hopeful of getting rich. They each bet over half their profits from the day on the race. I bet $90.

They each went home with much less to show for their efforts than they should have. They had earned quite a bit of money, then tossed it away in a fit of greed and impulse. Now, fast forward with me to Sunday. As I said, a tough day for me, and also for a group I spent some time with. (I hope it wasn't my influence!) We had just lost the 6th race to a horse that looked like it didn't belong on a racetrack, thus eliminating us from the daily triple as well. Due to a prior commitment, I was going to leave after the next race. At this point, after saving myself with a couple of show bets, and scrambling to make a profit any way I could, I was still down about $130.

As I began to go over my figures for the 7th race, one of the clients at the table began to complain that the track had changed, that he couldn't figure out what was happening and that he felt the best thing to do was to stop playing. Almost at once, the rest of the table agreed with him. Yes sir, the wisest thing to do is to stop when you can't figure out what's going on. I finished my review and began to fill out my betting machine cards for the race. When several people, all of whom knew I was not having a good day, expressed surprise that I was still going to play, I merely told them that I thought the race was perfectly playable and could see no reason to pass.

Thanks to a compelling argument by Michael Pizzolla for the horse that eventually ran second, I wound up not only with the winner, but the exacta as well. I made my usual bets, and finished the day with about a $45 profit. Not my most triumphant day, but a nice comeback. When I left, my companions at the table were planning exacta strategies for the ninth race, which we had all agreed was unplayable earlier in the day.

The point I'm trying to make is that it doesn't matter what kind of day, or cycle or week you're having; you should bet each race in a professional manner. If you're doing great, don't start spending like a sailor on leave, throwing money at every horse who strikes your fancy. On the other hand, if you've lost two or three in a row, you still have to be able to step up to the window and pull the trigger. Make your full bet.

In a former life, I used to hang around with a bunch of life insurance salesmen. (It wasn't as bad as it sounds. Really.) They were quite fond of putting up little signs that said things like: "Today is the first day of the rest of your life;" or "Now is the time to start making your first million." Stuff like that. There was one old timer who had a sign over his desk that looked like Ben Franklin printed it. Tatty. It said: "Plan your work, then work your plan." Not too inspirational, but he claimed that it was the basis of his whole career. He had developed a simple plan the first month he was with the company and thirty years he was still working at it. Since he was making $700,000 a year, he saw little need to change it.

I have a great deal of respect for those men and women. They faced many of the same challenges that we do as professional handicappers. They got up each morning not knowing if they were going to make anything that day, or if the day would be a complete bust. Many times they went for a week or longer without making a dime, but every day they kept at it. The good ones had a plan, and until they were absolutely convinced that there was something better, they just kept working that plan. They kept making calls, setting appointments. They had enough confidence in themselves that they were sure that they would pull out of a bad patch.

I try to pattern my behavior at the track after those salesmen whom I admired. I plan my betting, then I follow my plan. It sounds simple, but I think it is one of the prime secrets to success in handicapping.

I was recently sitting with a new client in the infield at Santa Anita. Again, I had told him that I had to leave after the 7th race to pick up Max, and that I hadn't had time to handicap either the 8th or 9th races. We both won bets on the 7th. As the prices came up on the board, I recorded my winnings in my record book as always. My final step in this process is to compute my next bet while I have my calculator turned on. When this client saw me enter my next bet, he asked me if I had changed my mind about betting the 8th or 9th races. Nope. Then how in the world could I know what my next bet would be before I had even seen the Racing Form for the next day? Easy, I told him. My bet is always the same; no ups, no extras.

I can literally tell you what I will bet in the first race I play the next day before I even buy a Form. I can't tell you for sure which race it will be, but its always one of the first two or three. I don't pass that many. To me, this is part of being a professional. A pro doesn't panic and stop betting just because he's lost a race or two. He doesn't cut his bet because he sees that his horse is 40 to 1. He doesn't start betting 40% of bank just because he's up a few hundred dollars for the day. The professional has a plan, and he follows it.

There is a time and place for creativity and inspiration in our business, but the betting line is not it. One PIRCO Charter member told me recently that he had spent half an hour planning how to bet a race he particularly liked, then at the window tossed it all aside and bet like a dummy. He still won money, but it cost him several hundred dollars. My advice, when he asked for it, was to never make a betting decision standing up. I used to always write my bets in my program before I got up to go to the window. I started because I have such a bad memory, but I continue because it keeps me from last minute panics. Now I use the automatic betting machines and fill out a card before I leave my seat. If I don't have time to calmly fill out a card, then I don't have time to bet the race. Rushing is death to the bankroll.

What you want to do is calmly and rationally decide which horses or combinations of horses deserve a bet in the race, write down your selections, and then go make the bets. Never deviate, no matter who touts you in a different direction. This won't make you a better handicapper, but it will make sure that you are able to take advantage of your skills and be rewarded for every right decision you make.

See you in line. I'll be the calm one with the betting machine cards.

DICK SCHMIDT'S AUTHORITARIAN MONEY MANAGEMENT PLAN

1) Start with a bankroll of $200. No more, no less. (OK, if this is more than you have, you can use less, but never more.) Even if you're a "big-time, serious" player for whom $200 is "chump change;" this is the place to start. Either your bank will grow to where you want it to be, or you don't want to be betting much anyway. Think about it.

2) Bet 5% of bank, split between two horses. Split your bet 60% - 40% or use a dutching program. Make only win bets. No exactas, no daily doubles, no triples, no nuttin. WIN.

3) When you have doubled your bank to $400, take $100 in profit and start betting 7.5% of bank, split between two horses to win.

4) When you have doubled the bank again (to $600), take a $200 profit (or start an exacta bank) and start betting 10% of bank. Set a goal for yourself and take a regular profit. What Huey Mahl calls a "spike."

5) Any bets other than win bets are to be taken from a separate bankroll. Once a bankroll is started, never add any money to it! If you need to add money, you don't want to be betting that way. Make each bankroll, each type of bet, pay its own way.

6) Keep careful and complete records of every dime you bet at the track. If you're not willing to do this, forget everything I have said and keep on losing.

I have printed similar plans before, in the Beginners Column and in a manual or two. I have always suggested that you just give it a try for a couple of hundred races and see if it doesn't work for you. It isn't a requirement to winning (as far as I know, the only other PIRCO Charter members to practice this kind of disciplined money management are Bert Mayne and Tom Brohamer. God knows Howard doesn't), but if you aren't satisfied with your current track performance, then ask yourself if you don't want to try a proven winning betting system. One that has changed several people who tried it into winners. I think once you get used to it, you'll never go back.

Money Management

by Dan Doran

One of the goals of PIRCO and The Follow Up is to serve as a communication medium to support us, the clients, in better achieving our goals in the arena of parimutuel investments. To this end, it is incumbent upon us to strive to clarify our language within our own ranks for the purpose of enhancing the communication process. The inherent implication herein is that we will probably be forced to leave behind the masses and their "hossy sayings" as we forge new, more accurate forms of expression.

Both Doc and Huey Mahl have expounded on this point in the past, and anyone who has been exposed to ENERGY! (easily the most brilliant work in handicapping ever) has seen that we do indeed have many new and, at first glance, seemingly odd terms, such as Variegate, Paragon, Muv, Uxr, etc. After careful consideration and repeated use, one concludes that these terms quite accurately and succinctly describe the new, exciting frontier that we are exploring together. The need for this new lingo clearly exists, and is being appropriately addressed. Bit by bit, old, tired, out-dated "hossy sayings" are being replaced by these more accurate terms.

Another such dated expression I would urge you to delete from your vocabulary is Return on Investment (R.O.I.). It is a term borrowed from the field of finance that fits better in the financial world than it does in ours. As dedicated proportional bettors, we in the Methodology should be working out of a specific bank, and betting a specific percentage (for example 10%) of that bank. Therefore, it makes much more sense, and is a much more accurate form of communication to speak in terms of percent interest relative to one's bank.

For example, if you tell me that this past week you had an R.O.I. of 1.5, I have no way of knowing how much money you made (the ultimate measurement) unless I also know how many races you played and how much you bet in total. You may have played only two races and bet only four dollars, or you might have bet 30 races at $200.00 each. Conversely, if you tell me that you experienced a growth of 120% interest on your original bankroll of $300, I can instantly ascertain that you made a profit of $360 ($300 x 120% = $360). The number of bets that you made and the total amount that you bet is irrelevant. The key is your percent interest.

A second and more serious drawback to using R.O.I. is the way most people calculate their average payoff (or yield per bet). From what I have observed, it appears that most people simply add up the winning mutuels and divide by the number of winners and call this result their average mutuel. This is erroneous unless they are splitting their bets 50/50.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

Furthermore, this average is still expressed as a $2 mutuel and the Kelly Criterion requires three inputs: wins, losses and average payoff to $1.00. As dedicated proportional bettors, we need to think in terms of payoffs to $1.00. This is the way that odds are expressed in the results charts. This takes a little getting used to. However, unless you properly calculate your yield on each individual race, and express it in odds to $1.00, your results will be inaccurate. To calculate your yield, use the following simple equation:

Where Y = Yield
O = Odds of winner (expressed to $1.00)
WB = Winning bet
LB = Losing bet
TB = Total bet

$$Y = \frac{(O \times WB) - LB}{TB}$$

That is, you multiply the win odds by the amount bet on that horse, and subtract the amount of the losing bet. This quantity is then divided by the total amount bet. For example, assume you have a race in which your two horses display win odds on the tote board of 4/1 and 6/1, and the 4/1 horse wins. Lets look at four /possible betting scenarios and their respective returns expressed in odds to $1.00. See how much they vary based upon the way one bets.

True Dutch = Win bets of $17 and $13 respectively.

$$\text{Yield} = \frac{(17 \times 4) - 13}{30} = $1.83$$

60/40 Split = Win bets of $18 and $12 respectively.

$$\text{Yield} = \frac{(18 \times 4) - 12}{30} = $2.00$$

50/50 Split = Win bets of $15 and $15 respectively.

$$\text{Yield} = \frac{(15 \times 4) - 15}{30} = $1.50$$

40/60 Split = Win bets of $12 and $18 respectively.

$$\text{Yield} = \frac{(12 \times 4) - 18}{30} = $1.00$$

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

Four slightly different betting strategies with four distinctly different yields. This example considers only one winning bet. Imagine the large variance over a twenty race cycle, or a group of twenty race cycles. As long as you calculate your individual yield on each bet properly, you can still express it as a $2.00 payoff if that makes you feel comfortable (e.g. an average payoff of $9.40, versus $1.35). Just realize that in order to calculate your percent Kelly advantage, you will have to first translate it back to a payoff to $1.00.

For starters, recheck a few of your old twenty race cycles to verify that you calculated the average payoff correctly by first checking each individual bet for proper yield. If no, recalculate them. Then convert these payoffs to $1.00 and compare your new percent interest to your old R.O.I. and see which one gives you a clearer picture of your success. See if you can be the first on your block to hold your head high as you report 65% winners at an average payoff of $1.80. By the way, this may not sound like much if you are used to talking in $2.00 mutuels, but in a twenty race cycle, properly dutched and betting 10% of bank, this equals 311% interest! Check it out . . .

Editor's note:

I have been to the track with many of the "big names" in handicapping, and spoken with most of the rest. I have yet to encounter a successful, professional (money making) handicapper who didn't keep through records. On the other hand, I have never encountered casually at the track anyone who kept even the most haphazard betting records.

Knowing your performance and how your track is running is essential to winning. Winners aren't afraid to confront their own shortcomings and struggle to overcome them. I used to tell people that they didn't have to show their records to anyone, thinking that this would make it easier for them to overcome their reluctance in this area. I now realize that the one person they are trying to keep most in the dark about their performance is themselves.

Winners keep records.

The Psychology of Winning

by Howard G. Sartin, Ph.D.

The response was slow at first. Then it came like a tidal wave. I'm speaking of your response to the exercise we gave you in Follow Up #15. Remember, we addressed the exertion of WILL over dependency and Determinism. We asked all of you to do the following:

The next step, Affirmation/Command, is the most difficult. It is here that the power of will often reaches an impasse through conflict with the power of determinism. This is the SICK POINT. If you make a positive affirmation/command and cannot follow through, you will have come face to face with the enemy within that stands between you and your goal. First test it. Assuming that successful handicapping is the motivation/goal, fill this prescription:

1) Command yourself to make all handicapping decisions before going to the track.

2) Command yourself to take $100 and make 20 straight win bets of $5 each; $3 on the low odds horse, $2 on the higher odds horse. You will not invest in any daily doubles or exactas. If at any time in this 20 race exercise you feel a knot or queasiness in your stomach, note it. Write it down. When did it happen, and under what circumstances. If at any time during this exercise you feel dizzy, or the sound of the crowd in your ears becomes fuzzy or dissociated, write it down.

3) If at anytime during this exercise your inner voice says: "This is silly. You cannot make money on $5 bets," write it down with a brief comment on what prompted that negative observation.

4) If at any time you are tempted to take a flier or are swayed by an odds differential on the tote board or by a commentary from a someone else (friend, stranger, tout sheet etc.), write it down.

5) If you lose a race, write down your TRUE reaction. When you WIN a race, do the same, but make a note of your emotions and especially how you feel about making the next wager.

6) Note your reaction, your gut feelings, if you leave the track with a losing day. Do the same if you have a winning day.

While this sounds like a simple exercise, it is not. Non-winners will find it almost impossible to complete. If you find yourself in that group, start with ten races, but no less. If you still cannot complete the exercise as prescribed, STOP! You're a victim of Determinism, and no matter how you try to rationalize it away, you will never make it in this field until you have been RE-PROGRAMMED, or what I refer to as Re-Parented.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

As we predicted, an amazing number of you failed to complete the exercise on the first try. A number of clients did not make it until the fifth go round, and an even larger segment is still trying. (I hope!)

This should give us all some deep insights into WHY we are not making optimal use of the Methodology. It is NOT lack of information or any weakness in procedure. The fault lies in the SELF. The INABILITY to exercise WILL or SELF determination.

One client reports that he felt the exercise was a little silly at first: Betting only $5 a race. But dutifully went along and was making about $1.49 for each dollar wagered until the 13th event. He had his selection, made the night before, in hand and was about to bet. Then he saw a tremendous odds drop on a certain horse NOT in his top FIVE. Everyone in the betting line started talking about it; some even claimed "Back-Stretch Information" as to the horse's readiness. Our client changed his bet: put it ALL on the drop down horse. Result: It finished third. One of his previously selected horses WON and paid $34. Back to square one went the client, finally completing a 20 race cycle AS PRESCRIBED on the third try.

The majority of those failing the exercise until the fourth, fifth or sixth try, were those whose personal diaries regarding their feelings after a win or a loss were sheer PANIC. After a loss they would question Synergism's AUTOMATIC VARIANT. After TWO losses they substituted a variant of their own. Of course, then the Automatic worked on the next race. In short, they could sustain ONE loss, but two in a row caused them top alter their selection procedure. They zigged and zagged and discovered that had they applied the Methodology universally to EACH RACE in a 20 race cycle they would have won 13. As it was the best of these accounts showed 9 wins.

These clients demonstrated that the anxieties produced by the ambiance of the track were roadblocks to their success. Losses created emotional responses that were destructive. One client had the sense to go to Las Vegas, another to Mexico, and invest in 20 straight races, as prescribed, WITHOUT REFERRING TO THE RESULTS until the cycle was completed. Their win percentage: 70. Average Mutual $10.80.

A client whose name is familiar to us all because of the articles she has written for The Follow Up is Jerri Lincoln. She was just married and has a new last name now. We all offer her our best wishes. With her kind permission, we publish her results AND her complete diary of feelings throughout the 20 race cycle. Jerri is a timid bettor. She started with a $50 bankroll and had an R.O.B.* of 1.39. She reported that she felt more consternation in making the next wager AFTER a WIN. Her anxieties kept shouting "QUIT WHILE YOU'RE AHEAD!" But she steeled herself and plunged through the 20 races with her eyes half closed with this result:

*Return on Starting Bank after 20 races.

True goal: Successful Handicapping
Motivation: My own credibility, proving myself--being successful, self-worth, and money (least important at this time).
This is definitely a means to an end.
Decision: It is important to me to be successful at this.

Thoughts and feelings by race:

June 7: One race bet. Won. Felt satisfied, competent, successful. Happy and relieved. Physical feeling in neck and shoulders.

June 8: Fear of betting--already a winner from yesterday--why jeopordize that? Passed all races.

June 9: One race bet. Lost. Felt bad--a loser. But I also feel motivation to win the next one, yet still a little fear of losing again. Physical feeling at top of head.

June 11: One race bet. Won. Felt good, but afraid to commit myself to next race.

June 15: One race bet. Lost. Very bad feeling.

June 16: Two prospective races. In the first race, the odds did not justify a bet. I passed, but would have won the race. Though I did not bet, it felt good to win because I had committed myself to playing that race. I bet the second race and lost. That made me feel bad, because I had passed the race that I would have won.

June 17: I generally handicap at home these days, but I happened to be at the book today. A guy asked me about a stakes horse that I had never heard of. He couldn't believe I was a "horseplayer" and had never heard of this fantastic stakes horse. Intellectually, I knew it shouldn't bother me because I don't play stakes races, and there's no reason to be knowledgeable about those horses. But it made me feel invalidated and perhaps a little incompetent. I got the physical "losing" feeling. However, those feelings must not have affected me too adversely, because I bet one race, and won it. It made me feel confident again.

June 23: One race bet. Won. Feeling really good. I've won two races in a row. Maybe I'm getting the old knack back.

June 25: One race bet. Lost. The loss undermines my confidence, and makes me feel bad, but I am feeling more anxious to make the next bet and prove myself.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

June 26: Bet two races. Won the first, lost the second. The loss was hard to take because the horse that won (and paid $25) was my #3 horse(and should've been my #2 horse). I felt bad, but not as bad as I feel when I just bet one race and lose that. The win on the first race helped to "cushion the fall".

June 29: Bet two races. Won two races! I feel really fantastic!--- like it's really coming together for me. I feel like I've turned a corner now. I can actually see an improvement in my handicapping. I also had a third race that I passed partly because of a foreign horse in it, but also partly because I chickened out--and I would have won that race, too.

June 30: Bet one race and won. I feel great--really great. But I choked on the next one, and chickened out on making the bet--and missed a $16 horse that was one of my picks. After a win, it's harder for me to make the next bet.

July 2: Bet two races. Won the first, lost the second. I didn't feel too bad about the loss, because I had just won four in a row. But it did still bother me a little.

July 3: Bet two races. Lost two races. I feel bad, especially that I'm off a roll, but out of the last three races that I lost, there is only one that maybe I might have had. Two of the three horses paid over $40.

July 4: I passed two races today, that I had my horses picked, and found a reason to back out later. I would have won both of them. It gave me a really sick feeling. I think I felt worse letting a win go by, than I do when I actually lose.

July 6: Bet three races and won three races! I "forced" myself to bet these races just to complete the 20 race cycle before we left. I would normally have passed all three for one reason or other. I think that has finally hit home, my "potential" if I actually get out there + bet.

Handicapping Vs. WINNING!

This article, in the form of a letter, comes from an authentic genius and world class Chess champion. Part of his genius was recognizing that I am not one. The natural reaction of genius to this discovery is to discount the intellectual offerings of those endowed with lesser I.Q.'s. For a long time this writer did so, causing him to go off at oblique angles from the Methodology and offer stubborn resistance to my negative stand on long-term data bases. To use his name would be of no value. It would only serve to embarrass a person who has learned the hard way that genius alone will not bring victory in the handicapping wars. The Chariot of genius is implementation. The fact that he has learned this is satisfaction enough. I urge you all to read this piece carefully, digest it thoroughly and apply to your own thinking.

Dear Howard,

Much as I hate to admit it, YOU ARE RIGHT! After many months of laborious, painstaking work building a handicapping database, I have come to the conclusion, that just as you said, it was a waste of time. I collected over 1,500 races and about 16,000 past performance lines on every horse who has run at New York tracks in the past six months. While there may be some useful information which can be culled from all this, I am too disgusted to think about it now! The fact is, that my PC-1360 is a far more valuable tool for winning than this vast database of information.

It's now quite evident to me that each race is a far too unique experience to be quantified by an attempt to look at all races as one large statistical block of data. Some races are dominated by matchup issues, some by high APV drop downs with poor form versus sharp cheapies, and some by extreme bias conditions that may exist at a given track over some period of time. Some races are paceless and some have strong pace setters. The combinations are endless although common patterns emerge. To lump all this together, is to lose the valuable information available to us when handicapping each race.

The best analogy I can think of is in chess. In chess I have a rating of 2110 USCF which is Candidate Master level. I often get to teach players who are less strong and the advice I give them is quite similar to yours. I may show them a game where the decisive factor is that one sides knights are misplaced on the edge of the board. Of course there is a rule for this, 'A knight on the rim is dim'. Next I may show them a game where the knights are also misplaced, sometimes on the same squares. None the less the side with the misplaced knights is winning because other factors are more dominant. It just goes back to the fact that we must use ALL the tools in our arsenal and not focus on one specific thing (idee fixee) to the exclusion of all else.

Having been programming and analyzing databases for the last six months, to the exclusion of all other racing activities, I decided to go back to square one with the methodology. It was time to empty my cup. I learned some very interesting things about my handicapping in the process:

a) I was overusing the matchup. In many races the matchup dominates, but it really depends on the contenders and pace lines available.

b) I started using APV and class factor information religiously. In the past I resisted this information as being obvious from a scan of the past performance lines. I won't even mention all the negative computer studies I've read. Now when high APV horses show potential signs of life, such as a good race within a bad one, I go back for more appropriate pace lines. Boy has this been paying off. A bevy of high priced win and place horses has resulted. True, in many races there is nothing notable about this information, but it's using it when its there that counts.

c) I started marking the +'s and 0's next to each pace line.

d) I was much too oriented toward 1 and 2 rankings and not looking enough at the overall balance of the numbers and whatever the track profile could tell me about energy distribution as a means to eliminate some of those 'high ranked' losers.

e) All of the tools available, matchup, APV, + and 0's, projection of the race times, PBS numbers, and manual adjustments must be made with a light hand. It's hard to explain that but you can't approach a race like a bull in a china shop!

f) Despite having many seminar manuals, I never really worked the races in these manuals as if my life depended on them! The Follow-Up was also enormously helpful when I went back and started rereading articles. There is a wealth of information in these materials.

g) These conclusions apply to any of the programs the institute offers.

Remarkably, after reaching all these conclusions, in a few weeks of intense work, I decided to revisit the Energy program. You remember that one. The one with the POOR model that I concluded did not work. Once again I have to admit that I was totally wrong. I started handicapping back races (results unknown to me) with energy using the last hand held version I wrote (doesn't even have the Paragons)! I found, not only did it work, but it worked phenomally well! How could I have been so wrong?

The main problem that I see with my previous use of energy is that I did not use ALL the readouts available. I constantly used horese with lines scores like 1 5 5 ... and configured races early. I never looked at the actual fractional matchups projected by energy and I didn't understand the overall balance and relationships between all the numbers. I never asked myself what it meant when two horses had very close MUV numbers or what it meant when a high (top two) ranked presser had weak sustained. In short I made no attempt to understand the program at any level other than the most simplistic. No wonder I thought it didn't work!

I now realize that the Energy program provides a much greater range of readouts and interpretation is very important. On the other hand, its not complicated, as the results of one set of readouts, often tells me when I need to look hard at other readouts as well. I have no doubt that this program is the most powerful the institute has produced and will not readily be imitated by those quick to pirate the methodology. And of course, the program itself, is worthless without the proper guidance. Reviewing the preliminary Energy workbook, which I had no use for one year ago, was very instructional with the proper mental attitude I now have.

I don't know why it is that I, as well as others, are always looking for ways to simplify (mechanize) the handicapping process. I would never think of giving someone a set of rules they could use to replicate my programming skills, or a list of books they could read that would allow them to play like Bobby Fischer. If I did, both I and they would be very disappointed with the end results. Both these tasks often take years of dedication and application. Why should handicapping be any different? I've decided to get serious about this avocation and am planning to start full time racetrack investment as soon as my current consulting contracts are completed sometime early next year. I'm confident I will be ready to meet the challenge.

For the next two months I intend to concentrate on handicapping to the exclusion of any racing related programming. After that, I'm definitely available for some Institute programming tasks! Do you have any interest in supporting the Macintosh? This is a difficult machine to write for but it would be nice to have a version of Energy for the Mac. That's just a thought. I will be happy to work on what YOU need. I don't know if you are currently planning a seminar in Saratoga, but if so please let me know. I would love to come and learn.

Thanks for showing me, and so many other people the way, in a field filled with charlatans and people who DO NOT KNOW.

The most important lesson to be learned from this article is that there is a distinct difference between mainstream handicapping thought and our own. Mainstream handicapping is based on long term statistics, a la Frederick Davis, Wm. Quirin, et al. From such stats come conventional means of determining and handling class factors, speed, par time variants, pace line selection and contender elimination. Other important aspects such as "Early Speed," the importance of any given call or fraction and adjustments are based on such data. The mainstream conclusions thus derived may serve to create better handicappers but they DO NOT address the issue of WINNING. We are concerned ONLY with Winning! Handicapping knowledge, per se is often incompatible with winning. As Huey Mahl has stated, WE in the Sartin Methodology stand on a different hill overlooking the same scene. If we are to be winners we must always stand on such a hill, alone and separate from the masses. It's a tough task but somebody has to do it.

The "Too Good to Be True" Class Drop

by Tom Brohamer

Aside from problems centering around interpreting the readouts, easily the most difficult problem we face is interpreting the intent of class drops. While it is true that the majority of races are won by horses dropping in class, there is a distinct difference between a positive drop and one that is clearly intended to rid the stable of a troublesome commodity. It's this second category that poses a major threat to our success as investors by offering the appearance of a quick and safe return on the bet.

In actuality, there is no greater threat to our bankrolls; unless you include pickpockets and the IRS. I'm talking about the claiming horse that has been winning or threatening to win (a horse's position at the stretch call is an excellent yardstick for gauging "threat") at a higher level than today's class and is now being offered for sale at a reduced price. Invariably, this "big class drop" horse will look superior to today's field and will rank highly versus the other contenders in the race. In other words, it will look "good enough to eat."

The lemmings at the track will inhale this kind, and by virtue of the ensuing short price, cause pressure on the player who still seeks the comfort of the crowd's opinion. Guess what? That opinion, as reliable as it may be in the "long run," is incredibly naive in this instance. Take a look at the past performances of the filly Summer Ambo, the even money favorite on June 4, 1989.

This horse is a perfect example of the dilemma we face as handicappers. We can all see the following: a top trainer, a top rider, a perfect distance, and a three level drop to a level this horse should handle without drawing a deep breath. The purse is her's for the taking, right? WRONG! This filly is making an extremely negative class drop and, despite holding most of the top figures using any of our programs, should be avoided like the plague.

You're all bright and logical people, so why not put yourself in the trainer's shoes for a moment and reason your way through the situation. Let's go through this together . . .

Granted, they only paid $25,000 for the horse, but she has clearly established a value well beyond that amount with an allowance win and her narrow losses in the $50-60,000 range. With the ability to earn major shares at much higher purse levels, why should she drop to today's level? Do you suppose someone has a little bit of information that the general public doesn't? The answer to that question seems to be obvious; of course they do. This is no longer the same horse showing in the past performances and will probably be claimed on the drop, while drowning a good many players in the process. You should note that, in most instances, the trainers claiming this type of horse are not the leading trainers on the circuit. The good ones are especially sensitive to improving versus declining horses. Their livelihoods are at stake.

Rudee's Great Legs appears to be an improving three year old whom I included as a Horse-to-Watch off his narrow loss at $32,000 on May 18, just 20 days before today's start. This guy is bet down to co-favorite at 5/2 and has the figures to justify a probable bet. At least it seems that way. But why don't we stop and ask a simple question: what would we do with a young horse with a clearly established value of $32,000? With all the sharp trainers around waiting to gobble up any reasonable value, I think we would run Rudee at $40,000 or stand the risk of winding up with an empty stall.

That would be the sound tactic, unless we know the past performances are lying to the reader. If that's the actual situation, we will probably use this opportunity to unload damaged goods by offering a "too good to be true" bargain. You can see from the results chart that this horse not only lost, but wound up with a new owner as well. I'll also point out that of the three claims in this race, only Rudee was claimed by a low percentage trainer.

One last example that, unfortunately, also involves a horse on my Horses-to-Watch list. After a smashing win at $16,000, Priscilla's Crown is unceremoniously dropped to the bottom class level at the track; a move which says that physical problems have once again gotten the best of this onetime classy mare. A few final words regarding strategy. We have a great many clients who subscribe to the premise that these dropdowns render a race unplayable. I encourage you to accept the opposite approach by aggressively attacking races that contain such runners. Once you've eliminated that much of the betting probability, virtually everything in the race becomes playable. This is when our two horse betting strategy becomes the most effective. This is an opportunity to catch the other contenders at overlaid prices. I consider this a "win-win" situation, and I nearly always get involved in the betting of this type of race. You should too.

Picking Contenders

with Apologies to Andy Beyer
by Dick Schmidt

It all started one sunny afternoon in Howard's living room. Howard, Jim Bradshaw and myself were sitting around chatting. Just passing the time until it was time for me to take Jim to the airport after doing a workshop in Beaumont. We were talking about seminars, and how many we would have in 1989. All three of us wanted several, but Howard pointed out that the only ones that paid for themselves were in Las Vegas. We wanted to go to other parts of the country as well, so Jim came up with the idea of the Trackside Clinic.

The three of us tossed the idea around for a bit, and by the time Jim and I left for the airport, we had scheduled four Clinics and planned how they would operate. We would use a Racing Form as a workbook, and attend the races on Saturday after reviewing the card. The first Clinic we held in Los Angeles exposed some problems with our format. We had forgotten to allow enough time for the speakers to thoroughly handicap the races beforehand. After a bit of groping, we settled on a process of contender and pace line selection that was quick, simple, repeatable and very effective.

Since then, we've been using this contender selection process quite frequently, both in our own handicapping and in solving problems for clients. I recently demonstrated the process to both a Beginners Workshop and an ENERGY! users workshop. The feedback was excellent in both cases. As a group, we handicapped 90 races for the people at the four Trackside Clinics and the Omaha ENERGY! Workshop. We left the winner out the machine 6 times, three of them in a row on one unusual day in Omaha. That's 94% contenders in the machine. Most of the time we use our traditional 5 contenders, but we weren't rigid about it.

I thought it would be a good idea to present to you a brief outline of this procedure. Don't expect anything new; anything you haven't heard about before. Most of this is covered in the yellow Phase III manual, and all the rest has been in past issues of The Follow Up. However, this is the first time it has been presented as a unified approach to picking contenders. After using it at half a dozen tracks around the country, usually coming in cold and handicapping before a group with little time to prepare, we are now "bullet proof" in our faith in the procedure.

At first glance, it appears both simple and time consuming. That's because it is simple and time consuming. Three years ago, it took me up to 45 minutes to find contenders in a race. As time went by, I got better and quicker. Now I can "eyeball" a race and have the winner in my contenders 80 or 85% of the time. Using this procedure, I up the percentage to about 95%. This is starting to make a significant impact on my income. Yeah, it takes 10 or 15 minutes a race to do, but the results justify the work.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

It really is simple. Chances are, you're doing most of this already. Here is the procedure, step by step:

1) Class/APV ratings on every horse in the race.

2) Do a +, O and ⊖ analysis on every pace line.

3) PBS numbers on every horse in the race with a pulse.

4) Determine each horse's ESP running style.

5) Think. Use the above information to analyze each horse in relation to all the others in the race.

See, I told you it was simple and not very original. It's just that so very few of us seem to be able to bring ourselves to do "all this work" on every race. We want to win, but this kind of repetitive, rote work seems somehow beneath us. It takes the art out of handicapping and makes it into a dull job. Maybe, but the results seem to justify the time required. Even doing all the above, you can still work each race completely at the track between races once you get used to it. Let's give it a try on some rather tough races.

Every year, Bert Mayne looks forward to the opening of Saratoga. When the big day finally arrives, he carefully packs his Racing Form and computer and heads for the nearest teletheater. Yes sir, opening day at Saratoga, and Bert is ready to play. Finger Lakes. That's right, while everyone else is battling the Queen of Tracks, Bert is making money at humble Finger Lakes. These are the first three races at Finger Lakes from opening day at Saratoga. They aren't "gimmies" by any means, but Bert won them, so we know it can be done. To tell the truth, when I handicapped them before I looked at the results charts, I only got 2 out of 3. When you check out the average mutuel, you'll see why I wasn't disappointed.

We'll work the first race together, then give the next two a try without help. Bert has marked his contenders and pace lines, but try not to let them influence you too much. I'll let you in on a secret; he missed one of the place horses. Let's see it you can find it and do ol' Bert one better. He won't mind. He got to bet on these races, not just fool around with them.

Take a look at the first race. It's all marked up for you already. I'm just sorry Jim Bradshaw can't see all the pretty colors I used. See you in a few pages.

OK, now let's take it step by step. First off, we'll look at Class/APV. As always, the Class number is circled. Based on Class/APV, we have five contenders:

1) Peace Pass
2) Classic End
3) Em's Mummy
4) Hostess
5) Miss Telephone

The +'s and O's are marked, so we'll skip ahead to PBS numbers. Here our contenders are:

1) Wrestling Team
2) Sheffie
3) Miss Telephone

After these three, there is a big drop off of 10 points to the next horse. It has been my experience with PBS Numbers that when you see a natural division of the field, the winner will almost always come from the top group. Not always, but most of the time. Now to determine each horse's running pattern. We want to pay particular attention to the + route races for each horse.

Wrestling Team -	Sustained Presser
Peace Pass -	Presser
Classic End -	Sustained
Em's Mummy -	Early
Sheffie -	Early (no form?)
Hostess -	Sustained
Miss Telephone -	Sustained (VERY Sustained)

A rather typical mix for most races. Couple of Early horses, couple of Pressers and some Sustained. Nothing is readily apparent from this mix, no horse stands out as having a tremendous advantage. Most of the time, this is how it works. You do the work and find that it doesn't really tell you much about how the race will be run. But mark my words, the first time you skip doing it, you'll miss that lone Early horse who can dominate the pace without problem and lose where you should have won.

Now let's try to put this all together and see if we can make sense out of all our information. First off, only one horse is on both our lists of top Class/APV and PBS horses; Miss Telephone. She is an obvious contender. She has only 2 poor races showing, and her last is probably her best ever route. I have no problem using Bert's pace line, as I think it fairly reflects what we can expect of the horse in today's race. Let's take the rest in order:

Wrestling Team - Dreadful record and poor Class/APV numbers. However, she has the best PBS number in the race, which makes her a legitimate threat. What we have it a classic picture of an improving horse. However, with that Class/APV, don't even think of going back for a pace line. Use the second back, which is the most recent route.

Peace Pass - Finger Lakes, in common with many small tracks, gives you lots of Tandem races. This horse is coming out of the same race as three of the other competitors. She has good Class/APV ratings, but a poor PBS number. She was also beaten by more than 6 lengths by the best finisher from the Tandem. All in all I can only agree with Bert and toss her out.

Classic End - Here is that best finisher from the Tandem. She has good Class/APV ratings and a fair PBS number. Her PBS number is the top of the second flight. Good enough, when combined with her Class/APV to make her a contender. The top line is her only recent route, and I can see no reason to go past it.

Em's Mummy - Almost the exact same analysis applies to this horse as to Classic End. Good Class/APV, marginal PBS. Her Class/APV certainly warrant going back Sheffie - At first glance, very similar to Wrestling Team, horrible Class/APV, excellent PBS figure. The difference is that he doesn't seem to be getting any better. Going one back to the ⊕ race at a mile would be a mistake in my opinion, as the horse did nothing in it's last to inspire confidence. Bert left him out, and so would I.

Hostess - Another with poor PBS and good Class/APV. The temptation is to go back one, but that is ignoring the 17 length defeat in the Tandem race we mentioned before. I can see nothing that portends a 17 length improvement in this horse, so I would definitely leave it out. The horse has only one + race in its last four, and that in abysmal time.

Miss Telephone - As we already discussed, an obvious contender.

There you have it. Contenders, pace lines, the lot. I'll use the same pace lines in both Synergism II and ENERGY!. Howard has always emphasized that you should use the same procedure to pick pace lines no matter what program you are using.

To interpret Synergism, you need to know that Early Pace with decent Factor W is winning, but nothing over 69% Median Energy. I didn't tell the ENERGY! program that, but somehow it knew. The thing is uncanny. In either case, betting the top two Early horses gets you the winner, though you can move it up to #1 with a Track Profile. Track Profiles are most useful things to have. You might want to take a look at the Problem Race in this issue to see an example of one in use. Now, give the next two races a try before you look at the rest of the results charts.

I did warn you that these weren't simple. I would have missed the second race unless I saw the odds and bet three horses. On the other hand, I would have had the daily double and the second race exacta, so I wouldn't have complained much.

In the second, Class/APV gives us four horses:

1) French Detective
2) Baja Peninsula
3) Golden Example
4) Strike Magic

PBS has two horses that more of less stand out:

1) French Detective
2) Feeling His Oats

Three other horses are together on the next step down:

3) Jim's Dream
4) Baja Peninsula
5) Bonnie's L'il Boy

French Detective and Baja Peninsula are obvious contenders, and in they go. Bonnie shows you that you can't trust PBS or anything to pick contenders automatically. 22 lengths indeed. Golden Example and Strike Magic are both high Class/APV horses coming out of the same Tandem. Since the Tandem was run on an off track, they both have the class to go back one.

Feeling His Oats has the best PBS number in the field, but he's coming off two very bad efforts with no excuses. Both were run faster than we expect today, but he doesn't win against 1:14.4 either. I don't have much problem tossing him out. Jim's Dream doesn't have enough Class/APV to warrent going back. He lives or dies on the last line.

Synergism II doesn't much like the winner off the pace line we used, getting him no better than third Sustained and third in the Doctor. French, the place horse, dominates the readouts, and the exacta isn't impossible, though I admit I'd have trouble getting the horse. Especially since we saw that the Track Profile shows Early and Factor W winning.

ENERGY! makes another of its remarkable predictions, saying that the race will run Sustained. Don't ask me how it does it, just do as I do and believe. On the other hand, even ENERGY! gets Strike no better than tied for second, and I think many users would break the tie in Baja's favor. The $89 exacta is just laying there waiting for you, and I would have definitely used all three horses in the double. A genuine tough race, that's why it paid $20.

The third race should prove to you that this approach works, and is well worth the trouble. This is really the easiest of the three races, yet the potential payoff is huge. Let's go through our paces yet again.

First, Class/APV. There are really only two horses with "sit up and take notice" Class/APV figures in this race:

1) Seymour's Seymone
2) Fire and Fury

Maria Domenica has OK Class/APV and would be considered marginal. Asil Bee and Dr's Flight round up the top five, but are really borderline. Now, on to PBS. Seymour stands alone at the top, but lets look at the next grouping:

1) Seymour's Seymone

2) Maria Domenica
3) Stayoutofthewind
4) Asil Bee
5) Countess J.L.

Seymour is in the top group on both ratings, and is an obvious contender. Maria Domenica is close, but is coming off a nine month layoff. Her Class/APV just isn't high enough to indicate she can step in and win. Very few $3,000 claimers do well off layoffs.

After that, I couldn't see any reason to cut it any finer, so I dumped all six horses into the computer. Both Synergism and ENERGY! put Seymour on top, which is a given going in. The horse's internal fractions are great off the last line. I'm more inclined to go back one on the horse, because I don't like using internals when I can avoid it, but I can't quibble with Bert's choice. I certainly wouldn't hesitate to bet it.

In sprints, Finger Lakes runs quite Early most of the time, and betting the top two Early horses from Synergism gets the winner. The place horse is a little harder to find, but it is the most Sustained horse outside the top two and is third in Factor W after our two win choices. Certainly not a great stretch to toss him into any box.

ENERGY! gives you the same two horses, with Seymour even more dominant. The exacta is just as easy, and if you follow ENERGY!'s recommendation and box the top three Early horses in the trifecta, you have a nice $2,000 hit.

Both programs preform similarly because we used the same approach to the race with both programs. Same contenders, same pacelines. The key to winning big is seeing the potential of horses that the public overlooks. At 6 to 1, Asil was a bargain, and good ol' PBS pointed us at a very long priced place horse. Seymour was a disappointment (except to Bert's bankroll) but that's why we bet on two horses to win.

I hope you come away with a sense of what this article was intended to teach you. This isn't just another "look what I did" run through of a past race where someone made some money. That you won or lost when you handicapped these races isn't important; it's too late to bet them anyway. What I hope you take from this is an understanding of the process we used to find contenders and pace lines.

Contender selection has long been my biggest problem in using the Sartin Methodology to its maximum potential. For the first time, I feel I have a procedure that allows me to not only handle the tracks and horses I handicap regularly, but also to march into any racetrack in the country and start betting. I bet the first race I ever saw at Monmouth, and I made over $600 on it.

Like with everything else we present, don't take my word for it. Give it a try and see if it doesn't only get the winner in your machine, but also guide you into a thoughtful and meaningful analysis of each race.

We will dedicate this entire column to an issue which arises every summer: short prices, shorter fields and low average win mutuels.

Since early June, clients investing at Hollywood Park have been plagued by this problem. It also happens in New York, Ak-sar-ben, Chicago and elsewhere. We will address the situation as generic, but focus specifically on Canterbury Downs in Minnesota.

It is essential for ALL handicappers to understand that summertime produces a unique combination of circumstances, wherein most race horses are running at the peak of their form at established class levels on tracks less subject to the vagaries of weather. Granted that in the Mid-West and in New York there are many summer downpours, but since they are accompanied by so much heat they seldom have a lasting effect on track surface.

Consistent form and minimal daily surface variants create a circumstance where handicapping factors known to virtually every race-goer dominate. Public handicappers, newspaper columnists and touts, all of whom have a great influence on the public's decision, have field days using factors of form, consistency and final time. When this advantage is magnified by short fields, the potential for longer price horses is further diminished.

In cold weather areas, such as Minnesota, the track MUST make its profit during a few short summer months. Since the majority of racing fans play favorites, races at such tracks are carded in such a fashion wherein only two or three contenders have any REAL chance of winning. For the most part these horses are obvious to almost anyone. Let the fan boast of winning two or three races every day and he/she goes back to the track day after day. The thrill of cashing tickets is the best promotional lure available to these tracks.

The long shot handicapper, decidedly in the minority, gets disgruntled and perhaps abandons the track. Still, the best laid plans of racing secretaries do go astray two or three times each day and better prices become available. It behooves us to sharpen our skills for these opportunities.

I tried to abbreviate the following letter from a Minnesota client but his language was to succinct. There is no deadwood. He addresses the issue thoroughly. I crossed out his name and address because that which he perceives as a problem would so delight most Minnesota area fans to the point where they would beleaguer him with phone calls and letters asking for the secret of his success; although he perceives it as failure.

Dr. Howard Sartin, Ph.D.
1390 East Sixth Street #6
Beaumont, California, 92223

Dear Dr. Sartin:

The purpose of this letter is to provide you at the Institute with what I feel is valid information, and, at the same time, to voice some frustration I am having with attempting to apply the Methodology (for the second year) at Canterbury Downs in Minnesota.

As you may or may not recall, I had initial application problems, mostly engendered by not fully understanding the Methodology, and later, by lack of access to a computer. The latter plagued me until just recently, when a kind friend agreed to give me unlimited access to his IBM PC. I then bought a Match Up program (on the advice of Jim Bradshaw) and my proficiency began to increase dramatically.

I credit most of my improvement to spending literally hundreds of hours over the winter listening to the Pace Line Manual tapes until I practically have them memorized, filling out countless charts as you suggested, buying and practicing with the Match Up manual, exhausting all races in all my old racing forms until there were none left to handicap on paper, many calls to Jim in Oklahoma, and on-track practice in Chicago (in conjunction with a Chicago study group) and in Des Moines at what appears to be a delightful little new track (Prairie Meadows).

Nonetheless, Canterbuy Downs just opened, and it appears that "here we go again." It is in this frame of reference that I must take issue with Jim's statement in the Match Up manual that there are "no bad tracks, just bad horseplayers." I firmly believe Canterbury Downs to be a bad track for any kind of serious play, and feel you at the Institute need to know this.

A bit of history of the facility is in order. After a highly successful inaugural meet in 1985 and similarly successful thoroughbred meet in 1986, the track overexpanded too quickly, conducted a disastrous harness meet in 1986 and encountered financial trouble. On opening day in 1987, they committed a blunder from which they have yet to recover; they advertised a giveaway promotion and attracted so many people that they created a six hour traffic jam of California proportions that was felt 28 miles away in downtown Minneapolis. Many people now refuse to attend the facility primarily as a result of that one incident. In 1987 they cut purses in a petulant response to a legislative refusal to alter the state's portion of the takeout and ran significantly cheaper racing than in 1985-86. Many horsement deserted them, and the fields were 5 and 6 horses in many instances. More fans deserted and to a large extent they have never returned.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

In an effort to reattract the fans, it evidently appears that management has made an affirmative choice to see that a maximum amount of tickets get cashed by as many people in the facility on any given day as is humanly possible, regardless of how much those tickets may pay on a $2 bet. Hence on a regular basis there is a high percentage of chalk, relative to national averages. During the last meet, percent winning favorites hovered at 39% for over four months, and finally finished about 37%. Percent favorites in the money was 77%. When I casually mentioned these numbers to Bob Cochrane while in Chicago, he remarked with surprise, "That's high!"

This same strategy is apparently being attempted again. I am enclosing a Racing Form and chart for Sunday May 7. I could provide you with many more, but I hope you will trust me when I say this is typical.

First of all, observe the lack of playable races by Methodology standards. If the races are not quarterhorse races (an entirely different game about which I know nothing) they are Maiden races. The quarterhorse mixed meet ends in June, but that does not signal improvement. The card then has even more Maiden races and 2 year old races, keeping the percentage of playable races inordinately low.

Second, in the playable races, notice two things: first, short fields and next short fields disguised as long fields. The 10th race is an example of the latter. Hoist Her Flag virtually cannot be beaten by any horse on the grounds, and so the apparent long field really is a one horse field. At least two features a week are races of this type. Second, regarding short fields, I am told by friends at the track that the barns are full. If the barns are full, why short fields ? In my view, this phenomenon is caused by a deliberate attempt to write the condition book in such a way that only one or perhpas two horses are, as Jim would put it, "true contenders." When this occurs, the tip sheets get them, the newspaper (which here is very good) gets them, and, if that is not enough, the morning line maker (likewise very good) touts them at the bottom of the program. As one of my friends put it, it is tantamount to the racetrack placing a neon sign over a number on the tote board which flahses off and on "Bet This Horse! Bet This Horse!"

Finally, notice the last race of the day, the Buckpiat race. This is quite typical of the garbage races we are fed here on a regular basis. The last race on May 7 hardly qualifies as a race. It is more like a workout for Buckpiat and the other horses are running to give the appearance of a race. When that race was run, the lines at the windows were enormous; everyone got to cash a ticket.

I believe this effect is what the racetrack wants. In 1987, until a volume of complaints forced its removal, the track carried a little tout show on its monitors, done by a local handicapper who was quite good and it was aired five minutes before post in every race! Needless to say, you could virtually see the odds board reflect the pick of the tout, and, incidentally, that horse quite often won. Granted, because it is still horse racing, the track doesn't always succeed with these tactics, but unless the weather doesn't cooperate (to wit, the chart in your form for Thursday, May 4) they're usually quite effective at it.

What does this mean to a user of the Methodology? The answer appears obvious. I am enclosing a recent 65% 20 race cycle, a proficiency I have worked hard to achieve. You will notice that no doubling of money occurred, in that the requisite average mutuel is just not there.

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

Dick Schmidt indicated that such an effect should not be occurring because I should be dutching Methodology horses at, say 5/2 or 4/1. However, I defy anyone to find Methodology horses at those kind of odds on any consistent basis. In the playable races, more often than not your Methodology horses will be 7/5 and 6/5.

Granted, I could pass race after race and be extremely selective. However, the racetrack is 90 miles from my home, and nothing is more frustrating than handicapping an entire card, having the horses, and going to the track only to see them chalked down to nothing day after day and no plays presenting themselves at any kind of price.

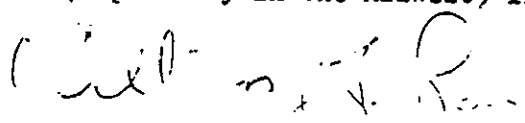
My exacta proficiency is not yet adequate for this pool to serve as any kind of alternative for me, not to mention that the takeout on exotics here is an effective 25% when breakage is considered. Moreover, these usually get chalked down too when theyfigure.

Dick stated that Glenn Smock had made money here. If so, I would really like to know how he did it. My guess is that this occurred pre-1988 and possibly even pre-1987.

I believe in the Methodology, and would never handicap a horse race in any other way again. I was fortunate that I was not severely victimized by the system sellers prior to encountering the Institute, but dumped just enough money on their idiocy to know that the Methodology is the only way to go, and to develop the commitment to learn it and make it work. There is no easy money in the world; you state that in the Yellow manual on the first page. I doubt I would really want to make my total living in this manner, but I do see an opportunity to significantly and enjoyably augment my income through the track. This is my goal, but I do not believe it can be achieved at this racetrack.

Let me close by illustrating how I view the carding of races: A friend of mine runs a retail archery store and schedules many tournaments in it throughout the year for target archers. He is also a horseplayer, and when I expressed my feelings on this matter he replied, "Yes, that's like me scheduling a tournament for archers who have not shot 290 since February 1. Many bad shooters are eligible to enter, but what they don't know is that a State Champion also may enter because he has been out of town since February 1, and not picked up a bow. Even on his worst day, he would beat anyone else who might enter, and then, after doing this, it's like inviting the general public in to bet on it." To me, this is a good description of the condition writing at Canterbury Downs.

If you feel that I am missing something important, please let me know. Otherwise, I would be interested in your thoughts. I also believe I am in need of one of the Institute's large seminars in order to make any further progress, but that that will be the final push I need to really insure I'm at the level necessary to be a consistent winner. Please let me know if you plan any of these (especially in the Midwest) in the near future. Thank you.



His letter is accompanied by a 20 race betting cycle in which his win proficiency is 65% and his R.O.I. is 1.38. My bottom line reaction is that he is crying into a beer that most of his fellow handicappers would take delight in getting one or two sips of.

A few issues back we favorably reviewed a book by Mark Cramer titled The Odds on Your Side, released by Cynthia Publishing. I had an extra copy of the work so I sent it to our Minnesota client as a gift. Here is the back page of that book; an overview by Dick Mitchell.

THIS AMAZING BOOK WILL SHOW YOU THE WAY TO THE WIN WINDOW!

Mark Cramer earned a Ph.D from the University of Illinois in 1976. He is the horse racing editor for Gambling Times magazine, writes the monthly column Horse Players' Corner and is the author of numerous articles that have appeared in American Turf Monthly. His last book, Fast Track To Thoroughbred Profits, received critical acclaim. His course Probability Theory As Applied In Horse Race Handicapping taught at Los Angeles City College has been the training ground for many Southern California winning players. He is one of the country's best and most creative handicappers. Most of all, Cramer is a consistent winner. His record speaks for itself. His performance on the radio show Inside Track is legendary. He outperformed all the other handicappers on the show. The show's producers had the resources of a large main frame computer loaded with sophisticated programs and the services of the best professional handicappers in the Los Angeles area. They were no match for Cramer. The November 1986 issue of Phillips Racing Newsletter reported the results of a three month independent evaluation of his selections. Results were an astounding profit of 34% on invested capital.

This book is the best exposition of betting strategy and line making techniques yet to appear in the literature of thoroughbred handicapping. Cramer writes in a simple style that is straight forward and easy to understand. He involves the reader every step of the way. He gives plenty of examples and includes workshops for the reader to practice the principles taught. These principles are powerful and demonstrable. This book contains twenty years of handicapping wisdom. It's written by a consistent winner who is eager to see his students succeed. This is a must for the serious handicapper's library.

YOUR R.O.I. IS SIGNIFICANTLY HIGHER!

Copyright SartinMethodology.com - Not for Resale

I send this page out to ALL clients who think that they are failures during those periods when they "only" earn R.O.I.'s of 25 to 35%. Please understand that I do NOT do this to in any way denigrate or minimize the "astounding" feats of Cramer. He is a friend of mine -and of Dick Schmidt's- AND an excellent handicapper. A brilliant one by mainstream handicapping standards.

This client demonstrates that he made a 20 race profit of $305.60, starting with a $400 bank and betting a 10% Kelly split 60-40. I know many to whom $305.60 a week, or perhaps it took a bit longer than a week, would be nirvana. Older folks living on Social Security to whom that much extra money would allow them a few luxuries in life. Still, it's not enough for a younger man to live on.

The writer of this letter, along with many others facing a similar situation, is asking me for advice because he wants what is available to clients who invest at year round circuits, to double his investment every 20 races. In short he wants to RAISE and R.O.I. that is already 6% higher than the best enjoyed by a renowned expert. To make more money on his current R.O.I. he needs to invest more per race. But that is not his true problem.

I would advise him to concentrate on keeping a PLACE profile along with his win profile. In the first race below the Place horse, a ONE HORSE BET, pays almost as much as the winner. In the second Result Chart down the place horse pays MORE than the winner. The Exactas are small but better than win. The third result charts is for Quarter Horses. They have a mixed meet at Canterbury. The $18.20 win and $22.80 place price along with a $355.80 $2 Exacta is quite typical here. I would suggest that he invest in our Q SCAN Manual and program to take advantage of these daily opportunities.

If I were in his shoes I would immediately subscribe to the Eastern and Western Editions of the form and handicap California and New York tracks along with Chicago which in IN his form. If, handicapping on paper without knowing the results, I could still maintain a 65% win proficiency, I would move to Las Vegas and live there from October through May enjoying an average R.O.I. of 1.65. I would then return to Minnesota and spend June, July, August and go fishing for a bounty of Northern, Pike and Walleye. I did that one summer and it was great.

That's the best advice I can give to someone who can consistently maintain an R.O.I. of 1.38% at a track dominated by low priced horses.

ANALYSIS OF A PROBLEM RACE

In the past, we have treated the Problem Race as an isolated challenge. Though there is a great deal to be learned from any isolated race, that is not how we handicap in the real world. Nobody plays one race at a track, then flits off to work another race at another track. Space considerations normally dictate that this is how we must present our problem races, but this time we have enough room to show more than just the solution to a tricky pace line problem. I hope to illustrate in some detail at least part of the process we use to go about our daily job of handicapping.

No race exists in a vacuum. There are always preceding races, a history that can be used to make our decisions that much easier. One of the prime tools of the Sartin Methodology is the Track Profile. It is sadly underutilized by many clients. A few minutes a day can yield enormous benefits, and unlike the Brohamer Model, you don't need to handicap every day to get the optimum use from it.

The race we are about to look at was run on March 15, 1989 at Santa Anita. By that time, the meet had been underway for almost three months, and any Methodology user worth the name should have had a Track Profile that gave him a deep understanding of how the track was running. However, let's assume that you were new in town, and wanted to get started. Clients ask me all the time how long they need to keep a track profile before they start to make bets. My answer is always the same: one race. Of course, three months is better, but you need to use what you have. Waiting until everything is perfect can be a long wait. We are going to build a track profile using the results from the previous one day of racing, and show you how they can be used to simply a very difficult problem.

Take a look at the 9th race. Do the Class/APV figures and PBS numbers. Still not the clearest race around, is it. Pick some pace lines and pump them through the computer if you like. You can eliminate some horses, but I'm left with four horses with a 1 or a 2 in one of the major readouts of Synergism II. Looking just at the readouts, I would find it very difficult to make the final betting decision. Now let's take a look at what a Track Profile can do for us. On the next page are part of the results charts from the morning paper. Before you turn the page, compute the beaten lengths for the winner of the first race at the first and second calls, just to be sure we all know how its done.

I hope you all got 3 beaten lengths at the first call and 5.1 lengths at the second. If you're off a taste at the second call, don't worry about it, but you should be close. I consider a head to be .1 beaten length. If you run these figures through your computer, you should discover the winner won with a 69.25% Median Energy. This information would be carefully entered into your 7 furlong Track Profile. Of course, this has nothing to do with our route race.

What I want you to do is to do a Profile using the two 8.5 furlong races, the third and the ninth. Enter the information into the track profile form in the same manner that I entered the 7 furlong example on the form below. Then take another shot at the race, using the information provided by the Track Profile to clarify your readouts.

I'll see you at the other end and we'll go over the race together.

I hope you all found that the Track Profile greatly simplified the decision making process in this race. Let's go through the race exactly as I did when I handicapped it and see if you agree with me.

Jazz Island - tied for top PBS number, and has very good Class/APV figures (look at 2 years. This race was run early in the year). I used the top pace line, and made no adjustment for the tandem, as Bortano seems to make a habit of beating this horse.

Dhaleem - horrible recent form, hasn't won for 2 years. I would eliminate this horse right here.

Ancient Blue - a good PBS numbers and decent Class/APV. Use either of the top two lines. I used the last.

Tricky Lad - OK PBS number and marginal Class/APV. I kept it in and used the last line.

It's Never Dull - horrible Class/APV combined with poor PBS figures eliminate this horse.

Bortino - oh yeah. Top PBS, good Class/APV. A definite contender off the last line.

Last Command - Outstanding Class/APV figures for this year. Marginal PBS number. I originally used the second back, but the third back is probably fairer to the horse. Going back 4 is way too generous.

Hovering Presence - low Class/APV and poor PBS. Need I say more? Out.

Kennedy Exchange - decent Class/APV and marginal PBS. I accepted it off the last line. It figures to be the Early Pace leader in this race.

Bueno Amnistia - see Hovering Presence above.

Bucket Head - a tempting horse at first glance, but everything about the horse is marginal. Class/APV is low, PBS is barely adequate and in the only route it ever ran it hardly covered itself in glory. After some thought, I chose to toss it.

Precedence - again, marginal. I tossed this horse because it just can't meet the Match-Up of today's race. I project a pace of about 111.2, and this horse pukes at the thought of anything faster than a 112. Out OK, we've got our horses and pace lines. Now let's see what Synergism II has to say about the race. My printout is on the next page.

Not exactly clear, as I warned you. Three strong contenders in Last Command, Bortino and Jazz Island, with Kennedy Exchange our number one Early horse. Now, take a look at the Track Profile I made from the results chart you used:

DISTANCE: 8.5

DATE	RACE	# IN RACE	CLASS	POS/AL 1st cl.	POS/AL 2nd cl.	2nd TIME	FIN TIME	% Fm
	3		C-50	Ø	Ø			67.96
	9		C-16	2.1	1.5			68.35

What does it tell us? That for this particular point in time, Santa Anita is requiring a very special type of horse in the 8.5 furlong races. You need good Late Pace to win, but you also can't be too far back. The horses are winning with Sustained pace from the front end.

Take a look at the % Med of Kennedy Exchange. Way too high. We can eliminate him. Now look at Last Command. Also too high, almost a full point above what is winning. We can eliminate Last. The rest of the horses are fine.

Now look right above the % Med column to where Synergism II predicts beaten lengths at the second call. Kennedy, Last and Jazz Island are all fine. Bortino is marginal, but I wouldn't toss it out. We only have two races to go by, remember. However, Ancient Blue and Tricky Lad figure to be much too far back to win at this distance.

Well, we seem to be left with only two horses. Since that's the general idea in the Sartin Methodology, we're now finished with the race. We place bets on Jazz Island and Bortino to win and sit back to watch the race. The results of this race aren't really very surprising, are they? What is surprising is the price we got!

Without a track profile, I would have a lot of trouble eliminating Last Command based on this printout. The public had trouble with him too, making him the favorite. How many of you would have left a 10 to 1 shot in and tossed out the favorite in this situation? With a Track Profile, the decision is easy.

One last point. We talk quite a bit about the ENERGY! program in this issue, and I thought you might like to see what the fuss is all about. I ran the race through ENERGY!, using the same pace lines and the automatic adjustment. It predicts the race to be won by a Presser with good Sustained Pace (the Variegate). Jazz is #1 Presser, 2 Sustained. Bortino is #2 Presser, 1 Sustained. Nuff said.

More than a year in the writing, the manual that has been requested more than any other is at last ready. In this book, PIRCO Charter member and Follow Up editor Dick Schmidt takes you through getting started in the Sartin Methodology with a thoughtful, step by step approach designed to lead the newcomer to the land of winners.

For the first time, we have an answer the the beginners question, "What do I do first? Where do I start?" Dick leads off with a discussion of the radically new terminology of the Sartin Methodology, carefully defining terms and giving the mathematical formulas for all of the handicapping factors used in Phase III handicapping.

In subsequent chapters, Dick, aided at critical junctures by Dr. Sartin himself, takes you through the mysteries of picking contenders, perhaps the most vital skill for a beginner to acquire. This is followed by a chapter on the complementary skill, picking pace lines. Together, these two skills form the foundation of the Methodology.

There are also chapters on making and using the Meridian Variant, the + and 0 pace line ratings, keeping a track profile and keeping the all important Brohamer Model. The advice to beginners winds up with a money management strategy designed to maximize profits while steering away from common betting errors that cost many beginners so much money.

There is also a chapter on selecting and buying a computer, which discusses all the computers supported by the Institute and gives the pros and cons of each. The book winds up with a copy of the workbook used in the beginners sessions at our seminars and workshops.

Accompanying the manual are three hours of audio cassette tapes, which feature Dr. Sartin, Jim "The Hat" Bradshaw, Dick Schmidt and others addressing a group of beginners and answering all their questions. The PIRCO speakers lead you through a discussion of all the terms used in the Sartin Methodology, and then take turns analyzing a race with the group. Dick Schmidt presents the "conventional" approach, then Jim The Hat shows how to do it with the Match-Up and voodoo.

- $49.00 for both book and tapes.

 NOTE to Follow Up subscribers: much of the material in this book has been printed previously in The Follow Up.
