STATEMENT OF POLICY

The Sartin Methodology is based in Psychotherapy and its goals are NOT directed toward fostering the illusions or delusions of gamblers seeking magic solutions for picking winners. We are primarily a healing arts organization dedicated to providing an alternative solution to mainstream psychiatry's prescription of total abstinence for non-winning handicappers. Our slogan is - and always has been -

"THE CURE FOR LOSING IS WINNING"

FROM THE
PUBLISHER'S DESK

Doc Sartin

"You only publish THE GOOD STUFF, NEVER THE BAD!"

That's the cry we get from those few clients who are non-winners and won't follow directions. They refuse to accept the fact that we've had several articles on worst case scenarios and have published many reports from clients whose efforts resulted in woeful losses that we strove to correct. Both the bad reports and our suggestions on how to correct the problems involved, have been here in the Follow Up.

One client on the phone to Aline even charged us with faking positive records. This caused her blood to boil. She told the caller that many of those forms he called fake were supplied by her after long hours of before-the-fact handicapping, betting and winning with limited funds. This shut him up. But who knows what unspoken doubts still linger in his and other suspicious minds.

This is a good example of Loser Tragedy. It is quite common among horse*players*. I trust it is less common in our group. Since horse racing began, there has been a faction that persists in denying even the possibility of consistent success. This group has always sought some outside source to blame for failure. From the very beginning of man's journey on earth such sources were the Gods. Man created idols and graven images as guides to success or to blame for failure. Even after Moses handed down that first commandment saying:

"Thou shall not have strange gods in thy sight. Thou shall not bow down to graven images..."*

This injunction is not exclusive with Judeo-Christianity, it is, in slightly different words, common to all monotheistic religions. Yet, if we listen closely to any horse racing crowd, we can hear the fans shouting invocations to various gods to guide their choices down the stretch, then blaming these gods or other gods when their horse fails to heed their invocations. Handicapping literature contains many lines referring to the various gods governing the fortunes of racing and handicappers. Perhaps the authors were being less than completely serious when making such references, but they appear in their books.

*(Mixture of Douay and King James versions.)

There are very few clients making these kinds of complaints. Aline Best gets more than Shane or I because of her empathic maternalism. One person told her that he's talked to a lot of people at his track who at one time tried the "Sartin Stuff" but they found it too complex, complicated and hard to understand.

Good Lord! - That's exactly what we want. What you should want. If everyone who tried it, from one source or another, understood its alleged complexity and how to use it optimally, we'd have no edge. Pretty soon all our current overlays would become low paying favorites and near favorites.

Every prospective client received an Information package before becoming a client. In that package are numerous clauses about the fact that this method is not an easy system!

The initial information further states most emphatically:

WE ARE NOT SYSTEM SELLERS.
NEITHER DO WE OFFER YOU A PROMISE OF RAGS-TO-RICHES IN THIRTY DAYS OR YOUR MONEY BACK.

My singular goal is to make YOU a winner! This can be accomplished only if you truly WANT to be a winner. This means abandoning certain popular "horseplayer" myths that are severe deterrents to success. To discourage those with typical "horseplayer" attitudes, we have left out a wealth of promotional material such as many of the glowing testimonial letters to Phillips Racing Newsletter, et al, that might tempt you to regard ours as a simple, 1-2-3 pie-in-the-sky system.

THE SARTIN METHODOLOGY IS NOT A SYSTEM! This is a method which requires cognitive effort, determination, and above all, self-esteem on the part of the user. We are not interested in gamblers or 'horseplayers'. They PLAY, while true handicappers WORK! To make this caveat even more emphatic, I ask you to NOT reply unless you qualify. Please don't waste your time or mine if you're not serious about making handicapping a profession or at least a profitable avocation.

These and other statements of warning have gone to prospective clients since 1982.

Apparently some read these words thinking they were just some reverse psychology ploy - assuming they read them at all.

Those few non-winners among us who cry out in pain, apparently don't understand the function of the parimutuel apparatus. It giveth and taketh away with inexorable justice. It taketh from the lazy who refuse to accept my Inquiry warning; who failed to study and learn the realities of what's required to win, emotionally and intellectually; but - it giveth great bounty to those who do.

Even if I searched trying to find for publication, just the BAD STUFF, it wouldn't even fill one full issue of the Follow Up. If we could fill such an issue with nothing but negatives, think how inspiring that would be. Like a general telling his troops before an attack that some of them would be dead by sunset. Our clients are now succeeding at rates we never dreamed of in the 1980's.

Today it's not handicapping problems that haunt non-winners, it's learning make proper decisions, especially when it's comes to wagering. The so-called good stuff we publish comes directly from those who have overcome indecision and are winning. From their example we expect others to learn. Those few who want more bad stuff should look at themselves long and hard in a mirror and question all the bad stuff they've absorbed from cronies, books and articles that's archaic or just plain myth, then say to themselves, "If IT CAN BE DONE. I CAN DO IT!" Since we all know it can and is being done, (winning races and money), whiners would become winners merely by abandoning their stubborn resistance!

Here's a little note that, in different words, we receive quite often.

I would like to thank doc for his response ~~to my request~~, on pacelines and picking the right horse, to stop using to~~o~~ many horses, and do not use the vector graph, as a ranking order, it said on page #67 of the workbook for video/audio ~~the same thing~~ , of course it take some of us longer to get it after we read it.

thank you   R. R. CA

I offer this to all those who say we should never print things that tell you what not to do. Clients like the gentleman above - and he is a gracious gentleman - have always responded more positively when I tell them what they're doing incorrectly; comments and instructions from me that reaffirm what not to do are the most effective. All clients have been told many times and in many way what to do. Still, they tend often to overlook the 'to do' messages but follow, seriously and successfully, injunctions of what not to do.

Does this make anyone wonder why the Ten Commandments have so many more "Thou Shalt Nots: than "Thou Shalts?"

Cognitive psychologists, like Daniel Goleman, who wrote Emotional Intelligence, spent a week recently lecturing on PBS. He reiterated the theme that success in our kind of endeavor involves only twenty percent IQ. Eighty percent lies within the area of properly directed emotion balanced with whatever IQ an individual does have.

We all live on a kind of emotion/intelligence seesaw. As the time draws near to make wagering decisions, many report a disastrous sense of imbalance. Some become so emotionally wrought that they describe walking from their seat to a betting window or machine as "Like walking over a slippery ice rink with water boiling beneath it." Other have used terms like "sweaty palms, racing heart and churning stomachs." Then there's the person who solved it all by telling me: "I'll never win, I have a loser mentality." He's just giving up and giving in to his addiction. He's a pathological gambler and chooses not to take any curative measures.

I can offer him nothing but sympathy. The same goes for those who are pathologically addicted to alcohol or narcotics or anything else. While they need professional treatment, ultimate cure comes from within. Psychiatry subscribes to this, so does AA.

There are others who win and lose by regular cycles; not because of any real deficiency in their handicapping skills. They're on a seesaw, teeter-tottering between a mental state dominated by anxiety-driven emotion and the kind of emotion that actually nourishes brain function, helping the client to make accurate decisions.

Decisions dominated just by intelligence can be just as faulty. I know certain clients whose "intelligence" manifests locked-in notions about the RANKING specific corollaries must have before he'll bet. If one or more corollaries ranks any horse below his arbitrary notions, he won't bet it. The sad thing is that these arbitrary standards are not based on anything in the Methodology to which he claims devotion.

Perhaps the depictions below of emotion/intelligence states will give you some idea of the importance of person being in and not of balance. There is nothing wrong with emotion per se. When it is harmoniously balanced with Intelligence it produces an ideal state.

Intelligence/Emotion tilted by Intelligence

Intelligence/Emotion tilted by Emotion

Intelligence/Emotion balanced

For those who like to look at so-called bad stuff, here's your chance to look and learn. Neither bad nor good "stuff" is of any value unless positive lessons can be learned from examples. Some of the report forms I receive reflect circumstances that can and are being corrected by means of direct and terse confrontation by me. Other reports are continuously cyclic, excellent one week, less so the next.

Cyclic success-failure patterns develop from clients with a short-term emotional-intelligence balance. Even positive experience and profits cannot seem to dispel the anxiety-ridden emotions lurking in the shadows of their persona. So they make the same disastrous mistake only every other week; an intermittent version of the "Over & Over" script I've often discussed before. Here, just one of several examples.

The circled horses are bets. There are no bets from BL/BL Tier 2 or 3. The instructions say BET Tier 3 Overlays regardless of Corollaries. He ignored a $26.20 horse Tier 2 just because it had a 5 FX. No other reason. He bets a $9.80 horse in Tier 4, but refuses to bet one paying $14.00 in Tier 3 and another Tier 3 paying $17.20 because it Ranks 4 in FX. He ignores the $9.80 in Tier 2. IT has a 2 FX. Missing the $5.80 Tier two winner is okay. Subtract that from the Tier 2-3 Total and he threw away a total of $66.60. So he ends up Losing for the day simply because of his fixation on X, or whatever. Whenever we get e-mail, phone calls or letters from newcomers requesting our Methodology Information packet, their wording as almost always, "Please send information about your new computer program, Synthesis. They see someone using Synthesis successfully and they want it, thinking that winning is just a matter of pressing a few buttons.

We all know better. The computer programs accounts for only 20% of our success, the other 80% is in thoroughly understanding and, above all, accepting, the philosophy behind the Methodology. Once understanding and acceptance are achieved, then it is just a matter of pressing a few computer keys. That is especially true when using Synthesis with the Wagering Decision Form and the new, improved BL/BL.

Know Thy Computer! If you are going to use a computer program, you really do need to know your computer and its operating system. There's no need to be a computer whiz or anything like that, but you need to understand the basics. At present, our computer programs are DOS)Disk Operating System) based, so you should know some basic DOS commands. Such as COPY, (to copy files) DEL, (to delete files) MD, (to make a directory) as well as a few other simple DOS commands. There are several books out there that can teach you all about DOS without having to have a masters degree in computer science. A few I can think of are DOS for Dummies by Dan Gookin, DOS for Non-Nerds by Michael Grogh, Understanding DOS, (I forget the authors name) as well as others. Another problem that comes up a lot is understanding Windows 95 and 98. If you have purchased a new computer in the last four years or so, it will have one of these operating systems already installed in the computer. Getting to know Win 95 or 98 is a bit more complex. I took a college course on the Win 95 operating system which helped me understand how to use it. There is a book called "The PC Bible" by Robert Lauriston I recommend getting. It contains just about anything you would want to know about PCs and peripherals such as printers and printing, modems, and all other types of hookups to the computer as well as covering Win 95 and 98 and the Internet. This book covers a lot more than any one college course can and, above all, is easy to understand.

RE: FOLLOW UP DELIVERY. With Bulk Mail, Post Offices are allowed to hold up mail for ten full days, This seems to happen ONLY in suburban offices near major cities. For this reason many bulk subscribers are receiving their Follow Up as much as a month late. Collectively I suppose this is okay since all issues will follow in regular sequence. The other alternative is FIRST CLASS mail which costs $15 more but guarantees on-time delivery.

Some clients get confused when they see DIFFERENT 2nd Call Beaten Lengths in Vital Factors and the consensus screens. The BL's on Vital Factors represent the paceline YOU used. The other set show 2C beaten lengths based on the PACE OF TODAY'S RACE.

An e-mailer wrote that every Methodologist would have the K. Derby winner EXCEPT those accepting dad's instruction against betting ten furlong races. He's ALWAYS encouraged clients to handicap the Derby. What he said was: DON'T handicap horses FROM 10 furlong lines. Use ONLY common route distances, preferably a mile 1/16h and mile 1/8th, when HANDICAPPING the longer distances. The difference between his interpretation of what he said and what he actually said could cause disaster.

Part 2   DOC SARTIN

Cracking the Corollary Code

I want to give credit to N.L. of New Jersey, who, along with Tim Brothers, also used the term, "Cracking the Corollary Code" in his praise for Synthesis (Follow Up 73). So the title we're using has dual authorship for which I thank both.

Last issue we covered detailed descriptions and explanation of all the Primary and Supplementary corollaries. More important was my discussion of the vital interrelationship between each corollary and the significance thereof. I also explained Fractals and how to use them in conjunction with the Primary and SUPP readouts.

In the same Follow Up, there were also articles on Energy and Fractions. So going over the incremental Fractional/Energy Readouts is not necessary this time since I've been discussing them for years.

Now we'll examine, in depth, The Energy Generator, the Quantum Rater, Vital Factors; The "Cigar Graph," Early-Late Diff. and Vector Graphs.

Next issue, the rest of the Graphs.

First the QUANTUM RATER:

(all readouts from original Synthesis)

This was a 12 horse field going 7 furlongs. I used 9 of the 12 for initial entry since a lot of clients still enter at least that many horses despite all warnings against such folly.

A Northern California client says we should include this in every issue. It is one of the main things that "turned him around". So we are utilizing this space to repeat this notice from Follow Up #66

XTRACTION & PROJECTION

Some clients are being harmed by their tendency to use the PROJECTION - EXTRACTION options in advanced Sartin programs:

SYNERGETIC MATCH UP, THOROMATION, PACE LAUNCHER, SYNTHESIS

I get the impression that some clients do so simply because, like Mt. Everest, the option is there. Good enough reason for mountain climber Sir Hillary, but NOT for clients who are truly seeking success.

XTRACT sprint from Routes ONLY when the 6 furlong time is EQUAL TO or FASTER THAN that of the fastest Sprinters in the race. The horse should show a consistent tendency to be on or near the lead at the 6 Furlong call in its Routes. This is a horse crying out for a Sprint despite its trainer's persistent attempts to make it a Router. It should have won or be within on length at the 6 Furlong call. I see too many Xtractions where the horse was behind as much as or more than three lengths at the 6 Furlong call. I also helps to scan a horse's complete past performance lines to see if it ever did well in a Sprint.

Projection is dangerous unless a horse shows some indication that it did well in a Route ANYWHERE in its past performance record. Horses that Project well fall into two dichotomous categories: 1) Those that ran fast 6 Furlong times and won the race, and were on the lead or within one length at the 2nd call. 2) Sprinters that did less than well, were behind at the 2nd call but had extremely high 3rd Fraction and Hidden Energy rankings. I see too many projections where the horse had neither of these indicators.

Again, it also helps to scan a horse's complete past record to see if it ever did well in a ROUTE.
This screen contains Fractional and 2nd Call times in feet per second as well as the POR, POH and LS/P. After Hides we can see that WINNI has the fastest POR and POH. It is also #1 LSP. Its closing odds were 5.1 to 1. In F-1 it's slower than the pace it ran against. However, in 2-F it gains with a 100.98, or .98 faster than the pace of its pace race. It continues to gain on the pace with a 3-F of 101.59, 1.59 FASTER than the 3-F of its pace race. It still lagged at the 2-C, behind by 6.25 lengths, even though it was steadily gaining ground after F-1.

The number 2 Ranked POR/POH contender is COMMA but it has no LS/P.

COMMA also has a deficient F-1, 97.12% or 2.88% slower than the F-1 it ran against. It makes a TT move. Its 2-F is 100.26, only .26% faster than the 2-F it ran against. A slight gain but it loses all of it back and MORE in 3-F with 98.83, or 1.17% LESS than the F-3 of its pace race. It had an upside down V running pattern $\wedge$.

Analyze the remaining 4 horses and apply the same reasoning.

Next, the VECTOR GRAPH. This does not necessarily Rank horses in order of their win potential. It ranks them in order of the degree with which they overcame their pace race. A wire-to-wire winner would thus appear low on the list. In this example the winner and place horse just happened to be one and two, It's a 7 furlong event from HOL. At the time at HOL, Late was dominant in races of 7 Furlongs.

For exotic bettors the graph, along with the Vector Graph provides viable answers available in no other readouts. Your records of the Win, Place and Show Energy Patterns will tell you whether Win Energy is Early or Late by distance and surface.

Most often the Place Horse runs counter to the winner. In this case it was the Show Horse.

Anyone keeping serious records at HOL during the time frame in which this race was run, would know that LATE was dominant for Win at 7 furlongs. In this case Late was also applicable to the Place Horse, since its sprint line was extracted from a Route. When so Xtracting, the altered line almost always becomes More Late than the original line. This fact has previously been discussed in past Follow Ups as well as in several manuals.
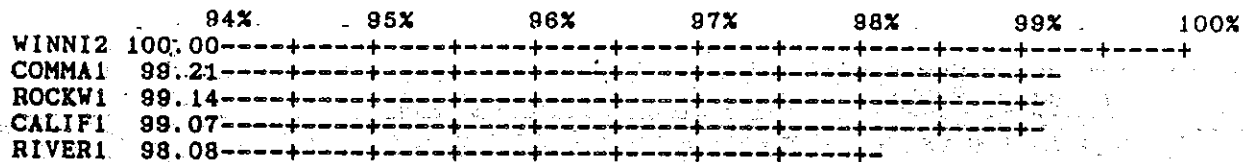

Now, the Line Graphs for Chaos Formula and Longshot Ratings.

This graph will only reveal the TOP 5 in each category. My personal fail-safe device for those entering too many horses. There is just no way you can make it show more than the top 5 Chaos Formula contenders and those with a degree of Long Shot Potential.

For this very reason some clients don't look at it. They put in too many contenders and don't want the screens limited to only five each. For Win only, these screens do a job for you that some clients refuse to do for themselves.

We see the ultimate winner, WINNI, ranked first on both the Chaos and the Long Shot Detector screens. In such cases we go to the second Ranked Long Shot Detector Horse as being best in this category.

Exotic Bettors should enter more horses before HIDING for WIN ONLY. Regardless of Corollary Rankings or BL/BL Tier Levels, the three graphs most beneficial for Exacta and/or Trifecta selections are the Early-Late Diff, Vector and Long Shot Potential graphs.

This screen has several functions. For those who like to see times at 2-C and 3-F, and those wishing to see Rankings in these positions. It also gives S-C Beaten Lengths, Actual Entropy numbers, Total Speed figures and Ranks and The Sartin Pace Numbers, you'll find them here.. Except for times in seconds and tenths, all these Rankings appear on other readouts. Those who still overemphasize the importance of 2-C, will be mislead in a race like this, as well as many others. The winner ranks only 4th on 2-C, over 6 lengths behind the leader. All its other Rankings are #1.

The three lines below: HIGH, LOW, AVE. have more importance. Note that WINNI's 2-C time equates exactly with AVE.

Another screen that is duplicated elsewhere. As in a motion picture, where the same scene is shot from several angles, this one gives a close-up view of its readouts. Perhaps a reminder of something you may have missed on other screens or, for those who download, the SUPERSCREEN. T/P is the same as TPP on other screens and is a very important corollary. So is Balance.

For those without SUPERSCREEN here we see SR, POR, POH, LS/P and, IF a contender went wire to wire,* an asterisk under W/W. It also has the EARLY Pace Ratings, Total Speed and T/PP (Total Pace Potential) in numbers and Rankings. For those confused by numbers other than Rankings, this screen can add to your confusion. If so, avoid it.

THE CIGAR GRAPH
QUAD-WATER GRAPHIC -- ATM

This is not a Pace Graph. Two different Pace Graphs, by increments and by calls, are also in the program. The CIGAR GRAPH performs a unique function and was designed for those with some semblance of skill in analyzing the Match-Up. The graph simply matches the horses setting the Early Pace with the other contenders. It shows how well the pace setter fared after setting the pace compared with other contenders you left in for consideration.

COMMA is the pace setter. Note its longer, thick dark line and the 0.00 and 1 Ranking after its name. Here is where some clients get mixed up. The thin line and the numbers and ranking following it, are not just Final Fraction delineations. They represent the horse's total deficiency, relative to the others and its projected Finish Rank.

WINNI has a .98 deficiency Early but makes it up by exhibiting 0.00 deficiency in its TOTAL (Finish) Performance. The most important function of the CIGAR GRAPH is keeping track of the TOTAL performance of the Pace Setter. If nothing else this graph will help get rid of Early-itis, a disorder still suffered by a few clients; a carry over from the late 1980's and very early 1990's.

In the past, a few clients have said they HIDE from this readout. Not a good idea. They're using TOTAL ENERGY as the basis for eliminating contenders. Total Energy is our version of CLASS. It has proved to be a more effective CLASS designator than all the other figures we've examined: Earnings per Start, APV, In-The-Money Finishes, Competition Level success, ad infinitum, don't hold a candle to Total Energy as Class. Still, the highest class rated horses don't win ALL the races, no matter how Class is measured.

In this race WINNI just happens to be the HIGH Total Energy Horse. The 2nd high is COMMA, who finished LAST. #3 TE horse, ROCKW, finished next to last. Incidentally, those were their rankings even BEFORE hides. COOLX was 8th. Waltz MD was ranked 6th. There is no denying that the HIGHER Total Energy horses DO win more than their lower ranked competitors. But it's not enough of an edge to use as a means to HIDE non-contenders. Use the Primary Corollary RANKINGS, paying close attention also to the SUPP. corollary Rankings.

In fact I just told a client who said he was confused by all the readouts to focus only on Primary Rankings, Supp. Rankings and BL/BL. Anyone, with his frame of mind, wanting a simple answer to everything, should do likewise.

The ENGEN also reminds you of how far back you went for a paceline. In this race, Under L, all contenders were taken from their last line except WINNI, 2 back, COOLx, 3 back. The N is how the horses were designated under N (Need to Lead). T is for Tandem horses. There were none in this race. Next to TOTAL is each animal's deficiency from the HIGH Total Energy. Then come readouts we see elsewhere. These are in actual NUMBERS as well as ranking. HE (Hidden Energy) is next. Look at the huge margin WINNI has over the rest of the field. 62.24. Nearest HE competitor, RIVER, 59.31.

Some clients have problems deciding the on the value of these numbers relative to each other. Simple record keeping would solve that. If you won't keep records, ignore numerical readouts.

FX is next. You'll find it in several screens because of its singular predictive power. Then comes Median Energy percentage. This stirred a lot of commentary in articles and books when it first came out. James Quinn even developed what he called Energy Pars.

There is no such thing! Percent Median parameters can be effective, but only when part of your records kept by distance, surface and range of Total Energy.

The next three readouts are important and valuable to all who'll take the time to study them. E/EP is Early Energy POTENTIAL which differs from just Early Pace or EPR. L/EP is Late Energy POTENTIAL, Not the same as LATE Energy or LPR. Both determine a horse's POTENTIAL to run early or late. T/PP, Total Pace Potential is derived from these two ratings that together produce BALANCE.

As an example of the difference between Early Pace and Early Pace POTENTIAL, look at WINNI. It has the SECOND best Early POTENTIAL, but ranks 4th on Early Pace itself.

BL/BL is the most important compounded Corollary of all. Yet, I pray that you do not look only at Tier Levels in this readout. Note first that it says "FOR WIN ONLY," so don't expect place and show horses to follow in Tier Level order. Look closely at the BOTTOM LINE numbers. Observe the fact that WINNI is 22.5, FOUR full points ahead of COMMA. Pay attention to the projected odds under BETTING LINE. WINNI is projected at EVEN but pays $12.20--$6.20 and $5.00 to Show. The lukewarm favorite in the race was WALTZ, M.D. who ranked 6th in Total Energy and was 7th Ranked on the Primary Corollary Line Scores.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF WINNING

The Collective CONSCIOUS

The late Carl Jung is famous for his exploration, writings and therapeutic applications dealing with PERSONAL and COLLECTIVE UNCONSCIOUS. His thesis was based on Archetypes, Symbols and Mythology as well as Racial Memory. Collectively, these and other factors, integrate each individual into various typology designations: Human Types, governing Attitude and Behavior.

I'll stop here for those who think that references to Jung, et al are too esoteric and intellectually oriented to be in a handicapping journal. It would be helpful for us all to bear in mind that there have been more books sold to the general public on Jungianism and other esoteric subjects, than all the handicapping books and articles ever published. Not just MORE, far, far more. It truly amazes me that any aspiring handicapper could resent my using parallel material that could help him/her to suceed.

I have a friend in the Northwest who keeps telling me I'd make more money if I used smaller words and skipped all psychological or philosophical references. True. But as the warning in our information package indicates, my motivation for expanding my practice into the field of handicapping was to help troubled gamblers become successful handicappers. Money was not the object then, nor is it now. I haven't taken any salary since 1996. My income is Social Security, investments and what I earn at the races.

Helping people by leading a revolution against Mainstream Myth is not a lucrative endeavor. Its rewards are spiritual and enhanced every time one of YOU sends me a winning report.

This is no esoteric piece. Among other things, it is about how the attitudes of others, usually in the majority, affect our COLLECTIVE CONSCIOUS. Unless we maintain eternal vigil, we tend to vacillate in our procedure, even our beliefs, based on emanations transmitted by others and picked up by our MIND-BODY RECEPTORS causing us to make NON-winning mistakes, most of which we catch after it's too late to capitalize on the error.

A good example is the client who missed the winner of the Kentucky Derby because some stranger next to him said the winner didn't qualify according to 'dosage'. More about the Derby in the column, GOOD STUFF.

We're all aware of spoken or written peer pressures that keep us from winning. But in this case I'm referring to unspoken/unwritten negative communication. Scientific study resulting from experiments conducted throughout the world, proves that our brain, organs and endocrine system transmit electromagnetic fields that extend far beyond the physical body. Some of these transmissions have been known to extend for distances of many miles. But I'll leave that claim to

We need no proof of the kind electronic transmissions that constantly are being communicated by one individual to another. Studies of this phenomena through externally projected electromagnetic brain thought-waves, body language, aura, as captured by Kirlian photography and other fascinating studies in Subtle Energy, have been tested and accurately measured for decades.

Just ask yourself, how many of someone else's sentences have you accurately completed during a conversation with that person. Maybe you're too polite to have actually finished another's sentence. But the more often you've quietly completed such sentences, knowing precisely the words another person was about to utter, the better you'll be at PASSING races and having an innate sense of when to go home or not go to the races at all on a given day. This ability, so irritating to others, is not ESP. It constitutes a high level of sensitivity, insight and intuition.

On a more serious note, mass hysteria is one of the more undeniable and identifiable manifestations of mind-body transmissions. In a subtle, sometimes unrecognizable way, an undercurrent of Mass Hysteria projects itself on almost all of us at a racetrack or off-site wagering center. Of course, we are always receiving transmissions from those in our immediate area: friends, acquaintances, even strangers. But we're also receiving messages from the rest of the crowd being emitted through mind-body transmissions that could well be having a negative effect on our decision-making processes.

Since most of the patterns of these transmissions originate in thought processes governed by mainstream "popular wisdom" or just plain myth, we're being barraged by non-winning emissions. This is what I call the COLLECTIVE CONSCIOUS because we are at least vaguely aware of what our receptors are processing. Tidbits of confusing gossip, Jockey-Trainer and a mass of other opinion, including answers to the eternal question, "who do you like?" and other peripheral data are constantly swimming through our ears.

This means that our conscious minds require a strong antidote against such toxins floating airborne around us like viruses or germs.

By the same token, a person more sensitive to mind-body, aura and other emanations, might benefit greatly in the company of a strong-minded charismatic winner. Mind-Body Transmitters and Receptors happily work both ways.

The notion that the human brain is a computer; so often called the greatest of all computers, is pure metaphor. The brain does process Information and plays a large role in directing the course of that information. Yet that is only part of its function. It is also a RECEPTOR for neuropeptides supplying BODY information. Unlike a computer it does not respond coldly or mechanically to incoming data. Our brain is extremely subject to FEAR and CONFUSION directed both by BODY organs, endocrines and external stimuli.

For those who can remain cold and calculating, using only their brain power to handicap and wager successfully, this article is not for you. Unfortunately for me, I have never actually met such a person. I have met those who claim their brain works like a computer devoid of any input causing hesitation, indecision or anxiety. They put up an enviable front but upon closer examination I find them subject to the same emotions as the rest of us. They are well suppressed. BUT, 'When you prick them, they DO bleed?' They DO see Darkness at Noon.

They survive, even prosper, because they have developed a mental, immune system that has strengthened their psyche to a degree of outer toughness making it possible for them to weather the occasional slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. They have records that PROVE, as do the few I offered in my article, DOOM & GLOOM, showing that positive days far outnumber the gloomy ones. They are soldiers of handicapping fortune who do not retreat at the first sound of enemy gunfire.

We have many who are so fortified in our group and the list grows steadily. Sadly, we have a few who are not sufficiently fortified; At least, not YET. There is still work to be done.

The major personality difference between the two factions was well expressed by BARRY MEADOW when he said in his book Money Secrets, "Playing five races a day five days a week, it's NO BIG DEAL to lose for MONTHS at a time." He's the only one I know who carries the idea of negative expectation that far. But NEGATIVE EXPECTATION is the chief difference between "Them" and us. We EXPECT to win consistently. As a result our suffering becomes magnified by adversity.

In this issue I've reproduced a losing day and followed it with five successive winning days. If your anxiety is severe enough you won't take solaces in the fact that the odds are five to two against continuous losing days. Sadly, those with this kind of anxiety tend to force themselves into losing situations. Just as some have a deep inner, almost subconscious sense of how to find and make VALUE wagers, others are driven by their negativity to seek and find the opposite.

Although they deny it vociferously, they actually want to lose. Nobody offers solace or pity to a winner. They buy the drinks and dinners. The non-winner gets to wallow in sympathy and blame others instead of self for failure. Why Not? Entire religions and Legal Systems have been built on the need to establish guilt or blame. Society has never blamed itself for the tragedies caused by its concept of adhering to "Conventional Wisdom."

In handicapping, not winning is a majority event. So, if the majority is always right, winning becomes wrong! If virtually all the literature, lectures, seminars and audio-video presentation on handicapping supports a status quo with limited profit expectations, what possible Motivation or Inspiration does the average recipient of such material have to surpass that status quo. It's kind of like the world before 1492, where it was generally believed that the world came to a demarcation point beyond which everything dropped into oblivion.

SUMMARY: The COLLECTIVE CONSCIOUS can negatively or, under perfect conditions, positively effect YOUR success. This means you must constantly RE-ENFORCE the belief system dominated by your mental set during your most successful cycles and FOCUS on your cyclic Wagering Decision Form results. As you do so, you'll find more and more overlays staring you right smack in the face. This NOT some illusionary fantasy. It reflects the ACTUAL EXPERIENCE of those who have DONE IT and are now consistently succeeding; some for the first time.

is a MIND-BODY process requiring a healthy balance between the effect of EMOTIONS on the MIND and how the MIND relates to emotions. Using them in coordinated balance enhances the capacity of the mind. VISUALIZING from this enhancement will cause you to see beyond the obvious; to see things in the Past Performances and in your Readouts you NEVER saw before.

Some even go so far as to call it MIND-BODY-SPIRITUAL Unity.

When the MIND is strongly focused on a particular endeavor and, what is commonly called, "The Heart," is focused on achieving the goals of the mind, there is a big open GAP: the WILL. When we're overcome with zeal in our mind on which our heart is SET, we tend to discount the WILL, that binds a mind and heart into a WHOLE. This binding is most essential and infinitely more important than just "wanting."

Focus on the POWER of the WILL and the mind and heart will follow. The computerized Wagering Decision Form is designed specifically to enhance the power of the WILL and turn what we euphemistically call: Handicapping" into a more definitive term: WAGERCAPPING!

Hope you all saw the Peter Jennings ABC News report on "INFORMATION OVERLOAD. It was almost a repetition of what I said in Follow Up #73: ABC did an excellent in-depth report of what happens to human emotions when confronted with the mass of information now available with modern technology. A wealth of studies show that a mind barraged with information overload is stigmatized to the point of trauma rendering most of us almost catatonic when trying to make valid decisions based on excess information. I witness a lot of this every time I go to an off-site wagering center, It is even more pronounced at tracks themselves.

There is certain basic information of which we should all be aware. But much of the excessive ancillary information - or MIS-information on the Internet and magazines can be more harmful than helpful.

INFORMATION isn't KNOWLEDGE! KNOWLEDGE isn't INTELLIGENCE.

We live in what is described as the Information Age. Hence, we tend to confuse Information with knowledge. Information is raw data. Knowledge is an accumulation of relative, interrelated data as tempered by the effects of history, insight and empiricism. Those confusing information with knowledge are destined to become the victims of the now rather than beneficiaries of the infinite. Intelligence is the native ability to synthesize information and knowledge into a perspective that produces positive results. These facts are true in WAGERCAPPING and in life.

WAGERCAPPING
Bettor's Choice

When I wrote that clients today were having fewer handicapping problems and that most troubles came from making proper wagering selection, a strange thing occurred. Some of you suddenly became quite careless about handicapping itself. With Synthesis, especially with the TrackMaster download, handicapping has now been relegated to following directions and using a modicum of sense about contender and paceline selection and interpretation of corollaries. It's now time to correct that carelessness and clarify some misconceptions before they get out of hand. I'll attempt to do so in a manner somewhere between the request of the person who wanted me to show "bad stuff" and the one who wanted to see only material about "how to", nothing but "positive" communication or about the mistakes people make. I published a number of "bad stuff" reports in Follow Up 73, 74 and in this issue, always keeping erring clients anonymous. I pointed out mistakes that had cost them real money. Failing to specifically describe these mistakes and how to correct them, would be totally irresponsible on my part. When irresponsibility costs a client hard-earned money it is inexcusable.

I realize there are dozens of handicapping books whose titles and authors I've been requested to never mention. Most of you have told me that you read them all. I've also read them. For the most part they're positive. They tell the reader "how to," based on the author's rules and examples of how they did it. They never show mistakes, their own or anyone else's. Apparently they never make mistakes and their customers are all error free. A consummation devoutly to be wished but one not consistent with real life. Oh, wait. I did read about an author's mistake in the current Horseplayer Magazine. He had all the winners but accidentally put down one wrong number on his pick six card. It cost him $72,666.

I can be like so many contemporary handicapping titans. It's easy. Here's how to do it. Bet only on winners, pass all races that won't pay overlay prices and, above all, have a copy of the following day's Results Charts on hand to assure that you succeed with the first two rules. See what I mean? How to is no problem. That's why so many big name professionals are doing it.

Realistically, at one time or another, sometimes even yesterday or last week, I've made all the mistakes you have. I make fewer now because I call myself every rotten name in the book when I make a careless mistake and strive to correct my errors with enough diligence to prevent me from repeating them. Note I said 'careless' mistakes. Even when exercising maximum care and effort, everyone will make an occasional mistake that is costly. I agree with Alexander Pope, "To Err Is Human." He ended that statement with "To Forgive is Divine." I wish he'd said "Correct" instead of Forgive. I'm not empowered to offer absolution and redemption.

I do know that I would not be forgiven by clients if I failed to offer ways to correct mistakes when requested. Such failure on my part would also result in no letters to Vox Pop, since they all come from clients who received corrective advice, some of which was not given diplomatically or even politely. Wishy washy, non-confrontational counsel is for cowards and never cured anyone of anything.

In the last Follow Up I stressed the importance of getting the majority of winners in the top THREE Tiers of BL/BL. I said when an overlay appears in the Top 3 to ignore Corollaries. I also said that when a big overlay appeared in Tier 4, or even 5, to pay close attention to positive corollaries only. I leave defining 'BIG overlay' entirely up to you.

Having made this point I'll now show you some Wagering Decision Forms that conform to the sub-title of this article: "Bettor's Choice." Three were submitted by the person who goes by the nom de plume, "Capper." His were from AQU and FG. One is from Aline, another from an anonymous donor. On each of these Forms you'll see some Missed, where underlays were hidden. When you see an underlay actually bet it's because the SECOND win bet was on such a big overlay that a properly proportioned total bet created a positive situation even when betting horse paying as low as $4.30 (Not recommended but it's on Capper's Forms from AQU only). It was 'Capper's answer to a query from Tim Gagas about handling the bevy of low-paying favorites winning so many races at AQU. As high as 45% during this period. 'Capper adjusted to the reality of that point in time.

When he did bet on these low paying favorites, his other win bet in these races was on a BIG OVERLAY: 12-1 or higher.

Here's how that works:

Total Bet $20. Bet $12 on the $4.30 winner = 6 X 4.3 = $25.80. He made $5.80 on the race. Had his 12-1 horse won, his return would have been 4 X 26 = $104. That's ONE way to handle periods when you're SURE that a lot of low paying favorites are likely to win.

'Capper's abilities, based on his attitude, can best be duplicated by reading his regular column in the Follow Up. I tried to positively teach this kind of proportional betting for years, but most clients clung to 60-40 and bet only on the top 2 RANKED choices, not their top 2. No matter how hard I preached HOW TO, my injunctions about the POWER OF 3 in the Yellow Manual and various Follow Up articles were ignored by many. Some even said they didn't know HOW to proportion a bet. That's just 3rd grade arithmetic.

Heavily tilted proportional betting may be okay during a period when low price favorites are dominating the winner's circle at a given track if the person doing the handicapping is a proven winner and knows it with such a degree of confidence that he answers questions instead of asking them. My experience tells me this applies to about 2% of all handicappers, but to as much as 60% of our clients.

With so much negative experience in dealing only with the positive, now instead of focusing on HOW TO, I include a lot of how NOT to do material. The result of this change in procedure can be read in Vox Pop. More clients are winning using the Synthesis Wagering Decision Form and having their errors corrected than ever won before from any How To manual, book or article.

(1) In this AFTER HIDES Form, Aline Best has no contenders BL/BL Tiered beyond THREE. She has no need to look at any corollaries underline(other) than BL/BL. Only when horses are in the 4th or 5th Tier do we examine corollaries; and then we only look for positive indicators worse than THREE.

(2) Top THREE tier overlays are automatic. Bet the TOP two overlays in the Top 3. Start with your minimum required return ($7.00) and the HIGHEST remaining overlay. In TIER #4 the $25 winner is suspect; but at that price 3 horses could have been profitably bet. The Corollary Ranking of FX in the $50.40 and $10.80, 2 and 1 respectively, warrant a wager without question. Look at the other corollary rankings, a bevy of 1's 2's and a triad of 3's.

(3) Here is 'Capper's answer to periods of low priced favorites at AQU. He bets these favorites as one of his bets when they completely dominate his corollary array. His second bet in each race was on a horse with odds of 12-1 or better. Again my reminder, 'Capper is a skilled Wagercapper with no anxieties so he qualifies for the subtitle of this article, "Bettor's Choice."

(5) 'Capper goes now to FAIRGROUNDS in New Orleans. All these race were done Off-Site at the San Bernardino, California wagering center. AFTER HIDES all his overlays were in BL/BL's Top 3 Tiers. All but ONE winner was in the Top 3 FX, with 5 being ranked NUMBER ONE and 4 ranked number TWO. This leads me to believe that those who tell me that X is not as potent in the East and Midwest as it is elsewhere, are NOT selecting contenders and pacelines with the degree of skill they may think they possess. They should Re-Read contender Paceline instructions and practice on dark days.

After 5 examples of positive, I'll now briefly show what some clients are doing incorrectly that's costing them a lot of money. I snipped and pasted from just SIX Form reports out of dozens, picking them at random. Collectively, based on only TWO DOLLAR WIN BETS, just these six oversights represent a LOSS of $271.80. Plus the money bet on the two horses that did not win.

Now let's look at some options. Cramer says he'll bet three horses when they're all overlays. That's One opinion and is dependent on the odds of the other two. My options are, bet the full $10, or if you're anxiety prone, just put $3 on the horse and maybe back it with a $3 Place Bet. Result, just using the 5th example from above, win bet only: 1.5 X $61 = $91.50. I don't know what it paid to place,

None of these winners had a balance of over 7. Most were lower. ALL six had a an FX Ranking of 2 or 3. They also had a number of 2 and 3 rankings in other vital corollaries.

Some of the clients submitting these reports cannot financially afford to pass up 30, 50 and 60 winners. What causes them to do so? I know the answers. (1) They're hooked on arbitrary standards for specific Rankings. (2) They confuse BL/BL TIER LEVELS with Rankings and refuse to accept the fact that standing at the finish line of most races, the first FOUR finishers will go by in a blink of the eye.

AGAIN, BL/BL TIER LEVELS ARE NOT RANKINGS!

The Length of a Horse and the Value of Opinion

How long is the average race horse? This is a question that has been posed and answered for generations. The old Systems & Methods periodical published by Gamblers Book Club had dozens of articles and controversial letters about the subject. Nine, ten and eleven feet were all suggested and elaborated upon in various issues of S&M as well as in American Turf Monthly and other magazines.

The true answer is that it doesn't matter one iota how long a real horse might be. It hasn't mattered since the advent of the oldest adding machine. Now in the computer age, applying a contemporary scientific method, a horse's length becomes an algorithm based on the physics value of a length, or portion thereof, beaten or gained.

What does matter is the mathematical value of a length relative to distance and velocity. This is a problem I solved by contemporary physics and have applied to all our computer programs since 1987.

Before that time I used a uniform 10 feet per length, a concession to a consensus of "popular wisdom." Brohamer used 10 feet in his epic book Modern Pace Handicapping solely for commercial reasons. Tom understands contemporary reality. However, the book's publisher, WM. Morrow, felt that readers would never understand the true physics value of a length relative to time and distance. The accuracy of their assumption can be witnessed daily via some of the myths adhered to the vast majority of horse*players* and perpetuated by tomes written by users of the Internet.

In the First Fraction of a race, when horses are traveling at maximum velocity and energy expenditure, we can see with the naked eye that distance behind is more easily overcome in the first eighth or a mile. Then the value of lengths ahead or behind becomes increasingly vital as contenders approach the second call. In the final split and coming down the stretch, all horses decelerate most rapidly. The ones that appear to be accelerating are merely decelerating less. Hence the value of a length must be altered accordingly.

To compensate for the reality of a length by velocity and incremental distances run, I have used three different values for a length. Long range research on hundreds of races has proved our formula is far superior to the uniform 10 feet (or any other uniform) value of a length in determining the winner and near winners of races at all distances and on all surfaces.

Morrow was correct. The handicapping public will never understand this. Most highly regarded pundits do not. They confuse the actual length of a horse with the value of a length in a mathematical formula. While my derivations are scientifically accurate they are referred to by some as pseudo science.

That claim is based on their ignorance of contemporary science to begin with. Add the fact that their ego won't allow use of a computer resulting in a viewpoint remaining as fixed as any prototypical cigar chewing checkered jacketed "Horse-PLAYER of the 1920's". (not that I have any objection to cigars or checkered jackets), just with the fixation with a 1920's mind-set.

This archaic mind attitude still dominates much of the literature of handicapping as viewed through articles in the major handicapping periodicals and books. This phenomenon seems unique to the horse racing field where writers and editors alike seem to ignore the fact that, as we approach a new millennium, there is a new paradigm for virtually every aspect of life. All other publications, be they targeted for popular readership or a specialized audience, are filled with articles about the Paradigm Shift in medicine, philosophy, general perception, science and life style. This is kind of ironic. I began writing about the "Paradigm Shift" in 1987 when readers were still pronouncing paradigm as PARA_DIGEM_ instead of PARA-DIME. Some still mispronounce the word but it doesn't stop them from winning with the new paradigm manifest through Synthesis.

Neither horse-racing writers nor editors seem to realize we're on the threshold of a new millennium and living under a new paradigm for all subjects because the subjects themselves have had distinctive value alterations for much of the past decade and a half.

In any handicapping procedure utilizing LENGTHS and/or minute portions of lengths, the value applied to such separations is often the difference between winning and losing. Perhaps that is why final time handicapping procedures are so popular: they make it easy to figure the distance separating horses crossing the finish line - the first three or four - at least.

The problem is that it's easy for all to figure which is why so many race goers bet on favorites and near-favorites. This is true for anything that is easy. That's why I'm chagrined when someone complains that our Methodology is NOT easy. This may have been true once. But today all the work has been done through research of the vital factors contained within the computer program itself. Little work is essential for the user. But that "little" is a lot for those refusing to study directions in manuals and Follow-Ups.

I get weekly Wagering Decision Form responses from dozens of clients. It no longer amazes me when I see clients wagering at the same track, same races, but getting different results. On the same day one client loses all the high paying races, the other wins them. Why? Mark Twain had the answer long before I was born" "It's a difference of opinion that makes horse races," he said. I know that the overwhelming majority of horsePLAYERS do not share my concepts (regarded as opinion) and I'm happy about it because it's their money I win.

Going home with your money because of differing opinions is not the same. That saddens me.

I do not want to shape opinion, per se. It's like chopping down totem poles and putting up crosses. Rather than molding opinion I prefer the idea of injecting reality into the opinions of others.

There's a vast difference. I can say that in honesty because I have no set opinions about handicapping. My venture into this field was a voyage of discovery, not one to justifying opinions which, fortunately, being a babe in the woods, I had none. I still don't have any opinions about handicapping specifics, other than one insisting that a study of long records of proven fact must always supersede opinion.

Christopher Columbus had an "opinion" that if he sailed west long enough he'd hit India and bring home to Queen Isabella and hubby Ferdinand the riches of Asia. Instead he hit the West Indies and gave the natives various kinds of "pox" diseases. The natives, in turn, killed off a lot of his sailors.

Things like that are bound to happen when setting out on a voyage inspired by "OPINION." Chris was so fixated with his opinion that the native populations of the continent where his journey ended are still called "Indians."

So it is with handicapping "opinions." They can "kill" you at the mutuel windows, blighting your selection process with a kind of pox.

Our efforts are aimed at detecting hidden facts that override opinions based on someone else's research - or lack of it. For example, there's a race published we'll show you next issue where the winner's last race was 220 days ago. He was only 6-1 on the Morning Line, 5-2 on OUR Betting Line. After a HIDE was 2nd on Bottom Line and paid a mere $10.60. Of twelve reports that included this race, only three clients won it. Nine lost because their opinions dictated that a horse laid off for 220 days was beyond consideration. Remember one of our strong points is betting TWO horses to win.

Virtually all opinions are born from a union of myth with personal prejudice. The value of "expert" opinion can be determined only by a careful assessment of the overall record of the expert him/herself. Racing "statistics" are generated from mass data covering many decades. Handicapping "statistics," the stuff we read about in books and magazines, are also allegedly compiled from mass data. I don't know whether or not that's always true. I do know that most currently published data is processed through the "subjective" opinion-based prejudices of those offering this "data" material.

In scientific research there is a system of "objective" checks and balances that processes all data published in a professional journal. Yet, even in the most prestigious of these, fraudulent information is frequently discovered after publication. Book and magazine editors in our field do not make any attempt to verify the information they publish. They don't even try to determine if content is original or plagiarized. It's a crying shame.

Amazingly enough, the same editors and publishers would never release a book dealing with any of the sciences or even a novel, without thoroughly researching the accuracy and originality of the work.

Anything based on someone's opinion of apparent mass evidence is by definition prejudiced against minority evidence. Racial or ethnic prejudice springs from the same source.

Rest assured I am not referring to opinions that are based on rational self-examination or long term experiential proof, so long as it does not remain in stasis after those opinions are formed. To be valid an opinion in our field, must be subject to current proof and current fact, not the facts of another era of even of last week.

I also believe in gut feelings which, when proven accurate, are actually mind-body revelations to which we must adhere. The important thing is to be able to distinguish mind-body (gut) feelings from delusional hunches. Unfortunately, in the case of many handicappers and horseplayers, so-called gut feelings and hunches are nothing more than delusional projections of their prejudiced opinions.

Are you letting misguided, prejudicial opinions bias you against current reality? That's certainly true of the 95% of those lose daily wagering on races. WHY join their ranks when you can be among the 5% who win the money lost by the 95 percent?

No one is completely devoid of handicapping opinions. I've found that winners base their opinions on facts derived from research. Non-winners express opinions based on something they read or heard without checking for accuracy.

Any opinions you may have that help make you a consistent winner, are more than okay with me. Opinions of non-winners don't impress me in the least. Sorry.

TIERS vs. RANKS

Confusion over what we mean by BL/BL TIERS is causing some clients to miss out on very profitable overlays. While Tiers can also be constructed vertically, by our definition. TIERS are laid out in horizontal layers. For example, the only distinction between Tier 1 and Tier 4, even 5, is the mutuel price, NOTHING ELSE!

RANKS, on the other hand are linear distinctions that enumerate an order of preference for given corollaries and compounded summaries.

Confusing the two or trying to define them as being the SAME, is causing otherwise bright clients to overlook OVERLAYS than are TIERED above 2 or 3. Those doing so are taking a very POWERFUL piece of artillery and using it like a slingshot. There are several examples of this error contained in This edition of the Follow Up.

The Art & Science of PASSING Races ~

Part 2

Until I began getting visual feedback from the new computerized Wagering Decision Form, I never fully realized how many clients were betting races in chronological order and passing only those with too many First Time Starters or Foreign horses with no usable lines. Granted, I've insisted that you handicap most of the other races in a search for Overlay opportunities. The reason for this is that the kinds of races that produce the most VALUE are often those that "conventional wisdom" says to ignore. Handicapping virtually all the races is one thing, betting them all is another.

Perhaps a new term is necessary. I'll call it "WAGERCAPPING." This means handicapping solely for the purpose of determining if wagering on two horses to win has a greater potential for profit than for loss. Many do this, others just haphazardly utilize certain readouts as their guide to bet virtually every race on a card.

Let's review some of the Wagering Decision Forms in this and other issues. The average number of missed per 20 race cycle is 7. This means the race, IF bet, is LOST since the winning horse was hidden because it offered no value. Where we see the actual word LOST, it means the winner did not appear in the top 5 Tiers of BL/BL even after HIDES.

In a particular report we find 10 MISSED but not a single PASS. Granted, the client did not BET every race on the cards of March 24, through March 31. He bet 6 races on the 24th, 8 on the 28th and 6 on the 31st. TWO Wednesday's and ONE Sunday. Apparently he skipped only those races with too many first time starters or foreign horses with no North American lines. With that many races bet per day it is apparent that he didn't PASS any races AFTER handicapping them.

I offer this report with no negative criticism implied. One doesn't criticize a person for having a tumor, liver or heart disease. Neither do we fault the individual suffering from a virus or germ. A caring practitioner can only offer a means for cure.

In this case the cure is learning the art and science of when to pass races after handicapping them. In his defense, I'll note that, based on betting $20 per race, $10 on each of two horses to win, he grossed $494. However, after betting $400 he only had a net profit of $94, or $31.33 per day. His ROI was 1.235, or 23.5% profit.

In the next issue (#76) read my excerpts in Meet The Press from an article in Horseplayer Magazine by Bill Finley. It's about New York's alleged biggest bettor and possibly greatest winner. The subject, Richie Schwartz, is adjudged "AS ONE OF THE BEST" by Jerry Brown, formerly of the Ragoizin Sheets, now of ThoroGraph. Schwartz is alleged to have bet from 20,000 to 30,000 dollars per DAY! But, author Finley states, "Even if you're among the BEST, you are probably working with an edge of about 5%." Schwartz doesn't disagree with the statement so I assume it's true (If anything in this article is true).

FIVE PERCENT?? No wonder he has to bet at least $20,000 per day! HorsePLAYER Magazine is aptly named. If New York's alleged best can only make 5% on his huge bets, than the client whose records I'm using in this article is 4.7 times better than the Big Apple's best. And that's without even PASSING races.

Perhaps I should stop this article right now and agree with Dick Mitchell's oft quoted statement that an overall profit of twenty percent (20%) is professional level. God help us amateurs who are dismayed at less than 49% profit over a 20 race cycle. No wonder Mark Cramer was so amazed at the 258% and 141% PROFIT we earned him on his two submissions of $100 each to test the efficacy of BL/BL.

Come to think of it, Mitchell was citing Cramer's "Amazing 30 day 34% Profit" in the book the Odds On Your Side. 34% Profit averaged with Barry Meadow's stated 8% potential, equals 22%, from which Dick could come up with his rounded number of 20%.

Cramer has come a long way since that book was published in 1987. So, I trust, has Mitchell. This is the trouble with all handicapping books clients and newcomers proudly proclaim to have read. They're outdated. But, and this is the point I've tried to make all along, they still have a great deal of influence on both the outlooks and expectations of their readers.

I'll offer a hypothesis based on this client passing 4 of those races where he shows as MISS. His total wager is reduced to $320. His net profit is still $94, but his new ROI is 1.29, almost 30% net profit. This puts him pretty close to Mitchell's statement about Cramer's results being 'amazing'! And remember, he did not bet that $22.60 5th Tier horse with 4 corollary rankings of 2 and 3, including a 3 in FX.

He obviously had his own good reasons for this decision. So I'm not criticizing. I just penned in LOST on this and the $7.40 5th Tier winner. I would expect everyone to lose the race with the $7.40 horse. However, when I see a $22.60 winner in a higher Tier, I'll either bet it or pass. It might even be a 3rd bet, but betting 3 horses to win can be profitable if one correctly proportions the total bet.

Considering the fact that this $22.50 winner had eight positive corollaries and only six negative, I'd also take a long look at the rankings and the odds of the 4 horses on the Tiers below it.

Many Value Bettors outside the Methodology will bet three horses to win per race, If they're overlays. Mark Cramer wrote me a stern letter about this, saying he often bet 3 to win.

Now to the nitty gritty: WHEN to PASS and HOW to know when to PASS.

First, my observations of those who take laptop computers with them to the track or off-site betting parlor, handicap and wager at several tracks, This includes those using the Multitrack option on the new Wagering Decision Form program. They choose two, three or four tracks where they had what they call "good luck" (there is no such thing) the previous day or week. With little consideration for ancillary factors they choose their pacelines from the best SR's or whatever they use. They hide horses with odds too low for them to bet, wager on any horse paying $7 or more and the highest overlay in the top three Tiers of BL/BL. Sound okay, doesn't it?

Not quite. They're doing everything mechanically: following a set of guidelines, but functioning like automatons. They're only using one part of their brain, their Frontal Cortex with no sensitive, emotional intelligence for balance. They're simply not examining races with fully functioning Mind-Body awareness of what they're seeing before them. Downloader's are especially susceptible to this kind of oversight. That's why I always buy a Daily Racing Form to go along with my download information, just so I won't miss something, particularly that total feel for a race I can't get as well from just depending on the mechanics of downloading. With so many more races now in the DRF, I only have to buy one form. On several days this has actually increased my profit over $100. Just ask Shane, Guy or Aline.

During a period when, as Tim Gagas reported, favorites were winning 42% of the races at AQU, a person at that track may have had to accept $6.80, even $6.40, If they can only wager at that track. When a winner is an obvious standout, according to your long-proven records, then you may accept lower odds or have to miss or pass so many races it's really not worth leaving home.

These periods dominated by low paying favorites tend not to last very long. It happened last year at Belmont. 42% favorites winning for a certain period but followed by a sharp decline and a plethora of longshots. I'll repeat something I've previously discussed. Tracks in financial difficulty card races so that obvious choices have the most apparent chance of winning. This is done to attract more action. Both AQU and BEL have been in financial trouble for years.

Aquaduct's Winter meet suggested move to Florida was one seriously considered solution.

Saratoga has always had a good attendance and handle because of its history, charm and age-old reputation as a Spa for summertime recreation. So, as opposed to AQU and BEL, it has been dubbed, the 'graveyard' of favorites. Not necessarily true, but like so many good ol' racing sayings and maxims, the notion still dominates racing news stories and is accepted as gospel.

Go over the Result Charts in this article and you'll see some of those races where I wrote "PASS" have more than one horse with odds too low for my personal minimum 5-2 requirement. In full fields only, I almost always PASS races where more than one entrant has odds less than 5-2. This also applies when the top three closing odds horses all have low odds, even if not as low as 5-2. In these kinds of races one of the three will most often win. Its quite taxing to decide which of the three will be the most likely winner.

Peter Tolan who writes hit TV shows and movies, also wins a lot of money at the races. He has one solid rule for passing races. If he doesn't feel - and I stress FEEL - that he completely understands a race, he passes. Those who just download races mechanically without getting any feel for the races - take note.

Aline Best always takes advantage of the question mark (?) option in her TrackMaster download. When she has any question whatsoever about the horse, she marks it "?." When she ends up with several horses marked with a "?.", she passes. By the same token she also uses the * (Star) option to remind her when some contender is, in her judgment, a standout. In speaking with clients, she's somewhat shocked when she hears they've never used these options.

Here are 8 example races, 7 of which the PERCENTAGES would favor PASSING. Percentages are just "probabilities." Even in these kinds of races, passing, based on percentages is no sure thing. So, these are NOT rules, just guidelines to consider before making a decision. The race I've numbered "6" is one we're bound to MISS since all entrants, except the less-than-even odds favorite, are OVERLAYS.

Race #1: Top two favorites are BOTH underlays. Two or more Underlays in a race usually means one of them will win. Race #2 The only REAL value in this race is WORTHY at 13-1. Unless it has very strong readouts, don't be deluded into betting it. PASS. Race 3, 4 & 7 Same reasoning applies as in Race #1. Race #5 Two Underlays and a 2.7-1 horse in a 5 horse field. Unless MORONI @ 12.4-1, shows extremely well on your corollaries, pass. But if you find this entrant in your top TWO, bet it to win and PLACE. Time spent analyzing YOUR records should ultimately give you a good FEEL for passing. But, don't make the mistake of passing just because of pure anxiety. One client did that and passed 18 out of 20.

Please don't confuse any of the above with the Del Mar Race that CIGAR lost to DARE & GO. Cigar's odds were ten cents on the dollar. All five of the other entrants were BIG OVERLAYS!

Obvious Exceptions to Pass Guidelines

We all know that rules are meant to be broken when defied by some *un*common sense and right brain logic. This applies also to guidelines. Here is the 6th Race at Santa Anita on April 8, '99. Why does it differ from the examples previously shown?

1: It is an 8f Turf Race, where the Favorite, 2nd Favorite and the winner all had to be projected from sprints. When the two favorites both require projecting, it is only fair to also project the ultimate winner. The Favorite was also a DIRT horse on the Turf.

2: I have frequently stated that BALANCE is of lesser importance in Turf Races. Also Turf Winners usually have good LPR, TT & HE Rankings. One client recently brought me several Turf Races he lost. I said look at LPR and HE. In all cases they were ranked 1 or 2.

3: In this race the Winner, ROBYN, had better BEFORE HIDE rankings in virtually every corollary than both the Favorite and second Favorite.

4: For what it's worth the winner was ridden by McCarron, a top jockey and trained by Sahadi, currently winning at 25%.

5: When an OVERLAY is this strong (2nd Ranked), paying $12.60 and the TOP ranked horse is an entry in a 5 horse field that would pay $6.60, you can't afford to pass the race because you're left with ONLY two betting propositions: the 3rd Favorite Entry and the biggest Overlay. This is much like the race where CIGAR was lost to DARE & GO. It's not a stakes race but it is a $62,000 Optional Claiming race in which all 5 five jockeys were given mounts to win, not for exercise.

Look at these projected and adjusted lines and see a horse crying out for a Route.

Ready.....? WIN!
by the 'CAPPER

Sounds easy doesn't it. We all know it really isn't. And then when we do win and win regularly we start doing things contrary to what we did to create the winning and POOF we are right back in the losing mold again. It's what we did that breaks the winning habit.

One of the biggies that I encounter are those who fall in LOVE with a horse. They forget all about paceline selection, all about corollaries and certainly all about Synthesis and BL/BL. They forget or choose to ignore the little consistencies in their handicapping that produced the consecutive winning days, weeks, months, cycles. All of a sudden after a steady increase in their bankroll they become clairvoyant. Or so they think. Imagine! All the work to get it right, paceline selection, odds/value determination, the dutched bet, passing certain races, and correct use of Synthesis. It suddenly goes down the tubes and all this winner thinks he needs in order to win is the Racing Form and a few minutes???

He will not be a winner for long.

How do we keep the win streak alive? Use the Methodology. Do not give in to the drive to be one of the crowd, to know who will win without doing the work. Dr. Sartin has given us the basic tools with which to win. Once we overcome our bad habits and start winning by using these tools there is still work to be done. Championship teams do not repeat by staying static. They continue working, working harder not to become complacent and return to the bad habits that kept them from winning in the first place. To stay in the winners line in handicapping may be even more difficult. And it requires continued effort. Strive to make sure the new, winning habits are not eroded by complacency and the adulation of the few who see you continuing to return to the cashiers window. And all they want to know is who da ya like this time?. After all, handicappers and horse players alike are all looking to delve into the same money pool. We, however, are willing to do the job to get there and to stay there.

How do we keep on top of our winning? One way is by looking at how we can better use what we have. When was the last time you bet on more than two horses in a race? More than three horses? Never? In the Follow Up we see time and again how even a small wager can put us ahead if we look at how, when and why we use multiple bets in our winning strategy. This strategy will never win for you unless you use it the first time. Make it a new, good, winning habit. A recent example was a race being simulcast in from Gulfstream Park. I had worked the race down to four contenders. The lowest odds among the four was 9/2 going up to 25/1 for the number four BL/BL horse. Going back over the read outs and the past performances I could find no way to eliminate any of the four. So I bet them all. I put 50% more on the 9/2 horse to even out the return should he win. The wager is $9.00 using the minimum and the longest odds horse does win and returns $52.00. Does it sound foolhardy? Could you do it? Am I betting against myself? NO! And I do NOT use this strategy every race or even every day. However, I am not afraid to use it and it is a profit maker. In this case it netted a profit of $43.00. It will not always win and the longest shot in the group will not always win, however, since I have LEARNED to make this adjusted, uncommon investment I am much farther ahead. Both in win percentage and in Dollars earned. This is one way I stay ahead of the break even point. It is part of how the Methodology can work for each of us. It is how the Methodology works for me.

The KEY point is to not try and change the program or the horses the program gives us as contenders and winners. In order to optimize the winning potential of the programs CHANGE the way YOU look at how you use the results. The program finds the horses it is up to you and me to best use them.

We cannot be ready to win if our approach is to take the Methodology program results and try to fix them using "mainstream *il*logic". We cannot be ready to win if we cannot change our bad, losing habits into profitable winning habits. We cannot be ready to win if we are not open to accepting the cutting edge handicapping advancements inherent within the Methodology. We cannot be ready to win until we know that we go to the track in order to go to the bank rather than having to go to the bank in order to go to the track. We have to be in the winning mode not just today but everyday.

Til next time

The 'Capper with a race day reminder........work the plan, be profitable.

A post script to recap the Kentucky Derby. The Kentucky Derby field was the perfect setting for the multiple horse wagering strategy mentioned earlier. With the favorite at 9/2 multiple winning bets was the way to go. Once the horses are entered in the program we face the question about how to bet them. Questions come up about legitimacy of races in New York and in Kentucky and Florida. Does it matter? The horses DID run those numbers. Can they be ignored? Remember these are three year old horses still improving. I ended up betting not 4 but 5 horses to win! I used Adonis (18/1), Charismatic (30/1), and the field (11/1) all at $10 and Stephen Got Even (5/1), and Menifee (7/1) at $15 to assure a profit on the race. Once again this proves to be a successful approach as Charismatic lit up the boards at $64.60 with the third highest mutuel ever at Churchill Downs for the Derby. I have $60 in the race and take out $323 for a profit of $263. The program works. The approach works.

A Reminder...........work the plan, be profitable.

DOOM

We experienced a day similar to this one and put it in the last issue of the Follow Up. On that day at least we made a few dollars. This time we only won the 3rd and 5th race. We took $6.80 in the 3rd because the odds dropped after we bet. The 7th, The Santa Anita Derby was a cinch but only paid $7.60. SO, even PASSING several races, We lost money. There's a BAD report for you skeptics.

I've read all the books on Value Handicapping, but never one that contained a full day's Result Charts that looked like those on the opposite page. I have read chapters or articles in which the author says, in effect, "When 6-5 is an Overlay." I must not be very bright since their explanation of how they narrowed the race down to the 6-5 horse being an Overlay, still remains a mystery. In fact the whole concept of the self-made Odds Line is a mystery to me. This is why I admire Mark Cramer so much for being able to make one.

I also admire Vic Palermo for now betting one or both of his top TWO overlays if they are big Overlays. He's in Las Vegas, has lots of tracks to choose from and is very, very patient. So are those who do multiple track wagering via the internet or by phone betting. Jay Tyne in Florida, who holds out for 10-1 or better when it's one of two clear choices. He has his own definition of clear choices.

He says that Synthesis gets these big overlays at least as often as it gets horses going off at under 7-1.

With such a stringent rule I wonder if he'll report the same success next week or even next month. People do have a way of changing betting philosophies depending on their current emotions.

The big question in the minds and hearts of those who hold out for overlays on a day like this is, "Do I continue value betting?" Well, for one thing such days are rare and are compensated for by many days in which hundreds of dollars can be made with just $20 bets. However, I'm fully aware of the inner turmoil that goes on in the guts of the anxious when they encounter such a day. I've been there. It's the reason I held out for instructions and computer programs that produced more winning selections as opposed to true overlays only.

Value Betting is not recommended for those who are anxiety prone. The Anxiety Neurosis, coupled with Depression, is North America's biggest single mental health problem.

Our Mad Dogs and Englishman, Tim Brothers, handicapping via TrackMaster and the internet from Bristol, U.K., seems immune. He goes merrily along winning our U.S. dollars and accepting his rare losing days when they come. I guess when you've lost an Empire on which the sun never set, losing a day at the races is inconsequential. Besides, Tim handicaps several American and Canadian tracks at a time.

When one track lets him down, he makes his profit from one or more of the other tracks. And, this is a chap who has to HIDE from the Morning Line printed on the Synthesis readouts downloaded from TrackMaster. He, like so many other clients, has also learned the fine art of PASSING races. Not the easiest thing to learn, I freely acknowledge. This art of passing races seems to be the prime forte of all Value Betting authors, particularly those who claim instances where 6-5 is an overlay. Some will also take even odds if, in their uncanny minds the horse should 2-3, or in any instance where the horse's closing odds are one full point higher than their odds line. So, if we're to believe these authors, they do not suffer on days like Saturday, April, 3. Wanna buy the Brooklyn Bridge??

Unlike many others Value Betting advocates, Mark Cramer freely admits to having some losing days, despite his mystic ability to pass many races. He has learned to live with such occasions. He was also highly impressed with the his return on investment from our BOTTOM LINE/BETTING LINE results with his money, as he reported in the C&O Report (soon to be reborn as the C&X Report).

No matter what they may claim, one-horse-to-Win bettors cannot enjoy the ROI potential we all have. Mark has repeatedly told me that he is not exclusively a one horse bettor. In fact, he admits he'll bet three to win, if the odds are right.

Those who are anxiety prone to the point of neurosis are less subject to reason than most. But for those with enough equanimity to accept reason, let's dissect a losing day like the one we used to start this column. To begin with it was an 11 race card. This means two or three more races than we'd see on a normal day. Regardless, the average client who follows our guidelines confines him/herself to actually betting an average of FIVE races per card, per day. Some of us bet SIX on days when overlay opportunities abound. Still, I average five. Aline Best hovers between three and five.

So, how much can you lose betting $20 per race, $10 to win on two choices. Even if you only win ONE race paying $7.60 under these circumstances, you lose but $82. If you lose all FIVE, you're down $100. With all the reports coming from people using the computerized Wagering Decision Form showing daily profits of from LOWS OF $169 to a HIGH of $303 - PER DAY. Remember, that's betting only $20 per race.

For another reality check, let's take a look at my credit card statements: Taking my family to a nice local restaurant for dinner, wife, daughter, son and his wife, the check comes to $324, including tip. I'm sure you take your family to dinner as much or more than I do. I also know that prices in Banning-Beaumont are low compared to any large city. Prices rise when one goes into the Palm Springs area. So, when a little while ago, Tom Brohamer and his wife Shirley took me and my spouse out to dinner in Palm Desert, the dinner with wine, no hard liquor, came to just under $300. That's for only FOUR persons.

To me this puts losing $100 in a day at the races into a kind of perspective reflecting real life. The issue is how much does one actually spend on recreation, entertainment without whining or complaining or even suffering any kind of anxiety attack after so spending. The real point is: Anyone who cannot _afford_ to lose $100 should not be betting on horse races!

Simple solution: Learn to WIN Value races before you bet.

Ours is a Risk/Reward avocation. You must know the exact ratio of your risk/reward from well-kept records. If you don't have the kind of tenacity that allows to for a losing day now and then without whining and/or suffering anxiety symptoms; if you don't (won't) follow a pattern that consistently shows your REWARD outweighing your risk, then stop betting, especially Value Betting.

Until you do recognize a pattern of Reward exceeding Risk, just make $2 bets and have fun.

Keep records, however, and you'll see that over a period of time you'll wind up either losing more that way or gaining NOTHING. You'll simply lose in little dribbles that are lower and slower so that your underlying anxiety won't recognize them. However, at the end of a season or a year, you and your bankbook will.

Never mentioning books, articles and/or statements made by real or self-proclaimed handicapping experts, suggested by S.C. from VA (with which I complied in Follow Up 73), is counterproductive. These author-experts have exerted far more influence on the minds of all handicappers (not just horse-PLAYERS) over many decades, than anything I've contributed. Much of their work, be it factual or mythical, is archaic by the standards of today's reality. Yet their words and rules have been deeply ingrained in us all.

Many of us have overcome, accepted the New Paradigm. But what about newcomers to the Methodology who've never been exposed to the concepts of the Handicapping Revolution? They admit they've read a number of the books that are mainstream "recommended." Hence, they begin by being somewhat brainwashed by YESTERDAY'S concepts that are mostly inductive presumptions.

Even the works of some of yesterday's ethical authors must be subjected to a current Reality Test. Newcomers have no popular source from which to make accurate judgments of what works and what is hogwash. If only Ainslie would write another book. His authority status and ethical standards as an objective analyst would do much to clarify the drastic changes that have taken place in horse racing and handicapping just since 1992.

To illustrate what I mean by general attitudes, even those open to some controversy, here's a portion of a letter:

A letter from a non-client:

Dear Sir:

I have just received and reviewed your audio/ video handicapping package. I would be very interested in obtaining the software and books that are mentioned in it.

I was quite impressed by the video presentation and would like to learn more.

I am a beginner to handicapping. Eight months ago I stared buying handicapping books, and now must own at least half the number of titles offered by the "Gamblers Book Club'. I have books by Quinn, Beyer, William Scott, Davidowitz, Jim Bradshaw, Ragozin, Huey Mahl, Litfin, Gordon Pine, Charles Carrol, Mark Cramer, Glendon Jones, Tom Brohamer, and others.

I really believe that pace is the foundation of handicapping and of the books by authors mentioned above; if the subject of pace comes up it usually begins with a discussion of Howard Sartin.

The final result was that those books he read, together with the opinions of his loser friends, overwhelmed him and he never joined us. S.C., on the other hand, discarded his entire racing library in favor of the Methodology, so I figured I owed him one. But where S.C got the idea that I was constantly "wishing for acceptance from such experts, the mainstream we are wagering against for the parimutuel dollar," I'll never know.

I want these people to scorn me and always recommend and do the very opposite of what I propose. That's the only way we can make our parimutuel dollars, True, I get a little peeved at the duplicitous manner in which some of them have literally stolen and slightly disguised my formulae. But that's to be expected, even among friends.

Philosophy, science, medicine, social mores and customs have always been dominated by the mainstream for the simple reason that there were more of them so they're "conventional wisdom" dominates the media of the times. Journalism, in its many forms of mass appeal has always shaped opinion more than literature or the kind of written or spoken concepts with only specialized significance.

The history of handicapping follows a parallel pattern. The majority of the handicapping public has always followed the axioms of those whose rules and guidelines get the most public exposure. For they are perceived as enlightenment; the light that shines on the majority.

Now, for what it's worth, here's a little story on whose moral you may wish to ponder:

It is late afternoon, just before twilight. A man stands in front of his house searching his pockets. The windows shades of his house are all drawn, so it's already dark inside. He cannot find his house keys in his pocket and starts searching the ground. He calls his neighbor to help him look. After several minutes of frustration, the neighbor asks: "Where do you think you lost them?

The house owner replies. "Oh, I know I left them in the house."

The exasperated neighbor angrily responds with,. "Then why the hell are we looking out here!"

"Because there's MORE LIGHT out here," the householder replies.

When a gloomy day occurs, look within to find the courage to overcome the ensuing anxiety. Even as extremely profitable days are the precursors of a losing day, so do losing days foretell a brighter future. It follows as night the day. This bad Saturday is a matter of record. Sunday was profitable, though not sensationally so. The next racing day, Wednesday, produced enough opportunity to wipe out all losses and ease even neurotic anxiety. Thursday and Friday were even better. For that matter, so was the following Saturday and Sunday. I have stop somewhere or the Follow Up will contain nothing but Result Charts. Morale: The householder was seeking what we all seek. But it lies within. Within ourselves. In his case, within the darkened house. Success in anything, particularly stochastic events considered gambling, lies not in the light that shines from the majority. But within the darkness that many are afraid to explore. There are those of us who would rather lose while searching in the light of conventional wisdom, than win by probing the darkness and seeking that winning light tat comes from WITHIN!

The ratio of potential success over the 5 days following our GLOOM day and from research covering many months and tracks is, for those who accept and follow directions, FIVE-to-TWO positive!

Ironic. 5-2 are the minimum odds I'll accept before betting. I also PASS an average of 4 races per day, as does Aline, Shane, Dick Fritts, K.C. Jones, Dick Resch and dozens of other proven winners, all of whom wager on races at LEAST two tracks per day.

Important Tidbits

ANY overlay that appears in your top 3 tiers of BL/BL should be considered on the basis of WIN PRICE alone rather than corollaries. If an overlay appears in BL/BL Tier 4 or 5, look for the HIGHER ranking Corollaries only. Tiers are NOT rankings. Consider horses in the top 3 BL/BL Tiers as equal, separated only by the MUTUEL.

In ALL races, following instructions about contender and paceline selection and use of corollary readouts IS the Methodology. Those who deviate from a Methodology they claim to be using, are perhaps newcomers who haven't had time to absorb enough of our material. Veterans who HAVE absorbed it all, should look inward for their reasons, both for their deviation and NON-winning. Newcomers have an excuse. Veterans have only themselves to blame for not consistently winning.

Please, for your sake, FOLLOW DIRECTIONS!

GOOD STUFF!

The 1999 Kentucky Derby

Dedicating a lot of pages to _one_ race, showing how and why so many clients won it, is not the purpose of this article. I exaggerate the importance of the Kentucky Derby only to demonstrate what happens when clients _do follow directions._ In fact most make pointed references to following directions in their missives. The many examples also show something we've known for a long time: The Auto Adjusted, Normalized and Equalized lines from the TrackMaster download produce results that are far superior to those from BRIS.

Every year, since GATO DEL SOL's big Kentucky Derby upset in '82 we've had a bevy of clients reporting that they won the Kentucky Derby. I did too, except for SILVER CHARM, who ran Early. Client response this year was the most impressive. Sunday and Monday morning, following Saturday's Derby, we got faxed with readouts, phone calls and e-mail confirming parimutuel victories with the CHARISMATIC atop all readouts and paying $64.60 to win. Some had the $727 Exacta, boxing the 3 top tiered BL/BL horses. One caller and one writer had the big $5,866 Trifecta, boxing their top 4 (as instructed).

I won't just tell you about it, I'll show you a few fax and e-mail confirmations and let them speak for me.

But first on a sadder note, a few reasons why some clients did not win the race. They refused to follow directions I've offered about winning the Derby for 25 years. Vic Palermo, one of the winners, has my home phone number, so he was first to call. He said he remembered a 1986 Seminar at the Aladdin Hotel in Vegas, his first, where I said to get rid of the front-runners _without_ strong readouts in HE, Sustained Pace (now CPR) and 3rd fraction.

He followed those guidelines and, on his readouts and one other we received, CHARISMATIC came 3rd, but with obvious signs in its corollary readouts. He bet it, which is more important.

The only disturbing thing about the two users who did not have winner CHARISMATIC #1, even though both bet it, is that they downloaded from BRIS. TrackMaster downloaders had the winner on top. TrackMaster lines are Normalized, Equalized and Adjusted automatically. Those from BRIS are not. In light of the distinctly different attitudes personified by BRIS and TrackMaster, I feel no compunction to improve BRIS' output.

Guidelines for winning the Derby have been repeated in many a Follow Up and a lot of people remembered and profited. CHARISMATIC's last race at KEENLAND was a stand-out RAW or Auto-Adjusted on the original hand-entry Synthesis' BL/BL and on the TrackMaster download. All one had to do was enter the best pace line from the longest distance run with no less than a win or place in a stakes.

So why did some miss it? It was the horse's best performance in a Stakes; but at a mile and one-sixteenth. Some failed to recall that until the recent past, no 3 year old vying for a Derby spot was allowed to run in a race of more than 8.5 furlongs. It was changed to a maximum of 9 furlongs. So what? Synthesis, downloaded from TrackMaster, equalizes, adjusts and normalizes all lines and gives an appropriate penalty to horses running a shorter route than the 9 fur. most Derby entrants ran in qualifying races.

NO EXCUSE THERE.

D. Wayne Lukas was the trainer. So trainer-happy clients couldn't exclude the horse on that basis. I will admit, when caught by the TV camera, D. Wayne looked like the most surprised man at the track when his horse won. Antley, the jockey, was coming off a weight problem layoff, so he was rested. There was one client who was going to bet CHARISMATIC until a perfect stranger told him the horse didn't qualify because of dosage. I wouldn't know. I've never looked at dosage or that other, more recent index that allegedly is required by a horse to win the Derby. Mike Helm had CHARI on top using Synthesis, and he's North America's leading authority on Breeding and Pedigree.

I cannot help but believe it was all the hype in magazines, the Form, and the bold prognostications of so-called experts that allowed the winner to go off at 31-1. It was 8-5 on my BL/BL Betting Line and was Projected at EVEN on one readout we received. The answer is simple: Those who followed directions WON the race.

Those who didn't, LOST. So what, it's only one race.

The tragedy, if one feels losing the Derby is tragic; the directions are so simple: nothing complex, fancy or esoteric. With apologies to S.C in VA., many clients are still paying more attention to the hype - the printed and spoken words of so-called experts - than they are to The Follow Up. Horseplayer Magazine had 20 experts, 10 from the East Coast, 10 from the West, plus a long Derby article by James Quinn. Not one even mentioned Charismatic. American Turf Monthly's regular Derby features also failed even to mention the horse.

Andy Beyer picked the horse that placed. He's getting better in his Derby choices. One day he's liable to WIN it. He said the Derby was a fluke and staked his claim on MENIFEE again - another 2nd place finish for the Great One.

On a following page you'll see a compendium of examples from DRF experts: ONE, Steve Klein, had Charismatic on top. He's known as their "Kentucky Expert."

Following the parade of Racing Form experts are some communications and readouts from our group. I abandon policy and use their actual names because they deserve credit. No addresses however, or they'd be deluged by people seeking advice.

KENTUCKY DERBY

DOCTOR HOWARD SARTIN, Ph.D.
O.HENRY HOUSE, INC.
1390 E. 6th STREET, SUITE 5
BEAUMONT, CA 92223

Dear DOCTOR HOWARD SARTIN, Ph.D.,
ONCE AGAIN I HAD THE DERBY WITH YOUR PROGRAM.I STILL HAVE THE LETTER YOU WROTE ME YEARS AGO ON HOW TO WIN THE DERBY, IT STILL WORKS!!!!YOU,SHANE AND THE REST OF YOUR STAFF ARE THE BEST!!! I HAVE BEEN WITH YOU SINCE 8-23-93 FROM THAT DAY FORWARD I HAVE HAD BIG PRICED WINNERS. AT THE FAIR GROUNDS ON MARCH 21,1998 I HAD THE 2nd RACE I PLAYED A $1.00 EXACTA BOX FOR $12.00 AND WON $429.50 FOR A PROFIT OF $417.50, ALL I HAVE OF THIS WIN DUE TO A COMPUTER CRASH IS THIS COPY OF THE WINNING TICKET AND THE RESULTS OF THAT DAY. THE WINNER WAS #1 BL/BL, I ALSO HAD $2.00 ACROSS ON HIM, BUT WIFE MY CASHED THE TICKET BEFORE I COULD COPY IT.THEN THERE IS THIS YEAR'S DERBY THE WINNER WAS #1 BL/BL AND #3 LPR AND # 2 HE ALSO #1 ON THE INCREMENTAL PACE GRAPH. I BET $120.00 ON THE DERBY; I CASHED OUT $646.00. FOR A PROFIT OF $526.00. MY WIFE HAD $5.00 ACROSS ON HIM FOR A PAYOFF OF $267.00 FOR A PROFIT OF $237.00, TOGETHER FOR A GRAND TOTAL OF $913.00 AND A PROFIT OF $763.00. TOGETHER!!!

NOT MANY PEOPLE CAN SAY THAT THAY HAVE HAD THEIR BEST WIN IN HORSE RACING. I HAVE THE 1999 ARKANSAS DERBY. IT IS SPECAL FOR THIS REASON.MY FATHER IS 89 YEARS OLD HE HAS HAD CANCER TWO TIMES AND WON BOTH TIMES .MY FATHER DID EVERY THING FOR ME AS A KID, HE IS A GREAT FATHER! HE EVEN LOANED ME AND MY WIFE THE MONEY TO START OUR TITLE COMPANY. HE HAS ALWAYS HAD FAITH IN ME AND IN ANYTHING I DO, THERE IS NOT ENOUGH GOOD I CAN SAY ABOUT HIM. ANYWAY HE WENT TO THE TRACK WITH US ON DERBY DAY HE LET ME MAKE THIS BETS AND HE I BET $42.00 ON VALHOL IN THE ARKANSAS DERBY I DID NOT KNOW HE WAS A MADIEN AT THIS TIME. WE WON $554.40 FOR A PROFIT OF 512.40 I LET HIM CASH THE TICKETS AND HAVE ALL THE MONEY. WATCHING HIM CASH THE TICKETS WAS THE SECOND GREATEST FEELING THANK YOU DOC!! AS SOON AS THE PITURE OF THAT DAY ARE DEVOLPED I WILL SEND YOU ONE. AT THAT POINT I EVEN CONSIDERED QUITTING HANDICAPPING FOREVER. HERE ARE VALHOL'S PRINT OUT AND THE ARKANSAS SPORTS PAGE THE DAY FOLLOWING SOME GOOD ARTICALS ABOUT THE DERBY IN THE PAPER. NOTE ECTON PARK AND ANSWER LIVELY ODDS WERE BELOW 5-2 AND WERE OUT. ALSO PLEASE FIND THE DAILY RACING FORM EXPERTS PICK FOR THE DERBY.... WHAT A JOKE NOW THAY WOULD LIKE TO MAKE THE DERBY FIELD LESS THAN 20 THERE STUPID, I WISH THAY WOULD LET 50 RUN IN THE DERBY. HERE IS SOME LIQUOR AND CIGARS; I HOPE THE HAM FEED ALL OF YOU. I DO HAVE ONE QUESTION FOR YOU AS I WOULD LIKE TO SWEEP THE TRIPLE CROWN COULD, DOC COULD YOU GO INTO MORE DETAIL ON THIS LETTER YOU WROTE ON WINNING THE PREAKNESS & THE BELMONT LONG AGO.

K.C. Looked at almost all K.D. contenders and bet the CHARISMATIC along with STEPH. Both bets were based primarily on Late Pace, and Hidden Energy. STEPH had an X for Early, meaning worse than 9th. It also had an 8th Ranked Factor X. This is why we bet on TWO horses to win. It covers a lot of incorrect interpretations.

Like all of you I am sure, had the derby winner on top!! My wife and daughters were visiting relatives in Louisville on Derby Day, they bet the horse across the board and were they ever thrilled! The horse even had the top trackmaster SR number.

Keep up the good work!

I was going to say "hope you're recovering well from your hernia operation," but given your help from Allah, I know you're well. Congratulations on having the Kentucky Derby winner on top on Synthesis! Next time Barry says that it's impossible to find a 500% overlay, I'll show him your printout.

To have the longest shot to win the Derby in nearly 60 years jump off my Synthesis/Trackmaster-downloaded BL/BL as the TOP pick--almost 6 line score points above the next horse, and crushing the corollary readout--is truly one of the finest testimonials to the Sartin Methodology that could be made...I can only imagine how the mainstream bunch and dosage experts are feeling today... Thanks so much to the entire Sartin family for such great work!!

Howard,

The enclosed readout isn't part of a wagering decision form 20 race cycle. However, it was very interesting readout and the results were even more interesting.

I marked the pacelines for all 20 horses and averaged the "TMPP" SRs that got the field down to where Synthesis hiding. Got it down to 6. Fred Tanaka

DOC COMMENTS: "TMPR" stands for Track Master Past Performances: lines all Equalized, Adjusted & Normalized. It took us 18 months working closely with the Trackmaster folks to make these adjustments. They payoff comes daily, especially when compared to the BRIS download which moved the Derby and Preakness winner to 3rd or 4th. Both clients using BRIS DID bet Charismatic, however, because of the odds.

Hi Shane:
I haven't written in some time.  How's the Doc, yourself, and everyone at O.Henry?  I hope you are keeping in good health.  I just thought you'd like to know that using PL4 Trackmaster I had this very memorable of Derby winners.  He came out top BL/BL at Even money with Adonis next at 9/5.

Thanks to you and everyone at O.Henry again.

Thank you, Howard. Thank your, Synthesis.

At 31-1, I included Charismatic for a win bet and got the Exacta, too. Doing just as you suggested. Best wishes,

ED Piesman

Hi Doc,

Just to say that I'm listening to and heeding your instructions. I'm trying hard to pass cheap winners. But sometimes a winner comes up #1
BL/BL and everything else - Like CHARIS in the K. Derby. It ran just like you've always said. Thanks for everything.

Sincerely

Dear Doctor Sartin

    I just wish to thank you for everything. It been more than horse-racing for me. I didn't place my first bet till after 4 years with you wonderful people. It work _ and I didn't know how I was doing it, today. I put 150 dollars in the window go back the next day and pick up my results. I have hit 200 plus exactas and 1 dollar box on a 450 trifecta.

    I also enclosed a copy of my winning ticket for the Derby the first time I ever bet it. The guys asked me my pick, they had fun with me on it. I bet one guy who just got on my nerves, I said that my horse would closer to the finish line than this, 8 Cat Thief. He gave me 10 to 1 odds. He kisses my χ now. I know Dr. Sartin my ego is talking, I don't mean to brag as much as to say how far I have come in this methodology. It's a 6 dollar ticket 12 dollar investment, got back 195 . Thank you.

    In closing a little thing I would have said at your dinner. " The man who knows the ego, the man with 2 juniors in his family. Only George Forman as more juniors under one roof, here's Dr. Sartin"

Hi Shane.

Please pass this email to your Dad.

Hi Doc.

Pablito e Pablo,
I feel like a broken record saying it again... the Derby was easy... Charismatic on top! (if you diregarded the dosage numbers, which haven't performed very well in the last decade or so.) At worst I think others might have got him second or a rare third.

Needless to say you did it again!!! This time it was too easy. Any student of the Sartin Methodology who missed this huge payday should be BANISHED from forever using your Name, guidance and/or software. Even an idot would have gotten Charismatic as the top BL horse.

Thanks again,

DOC COMMENTS: Dick's a old U.S. Army Colonel. To him, handicapping is like war and he takes no guff from the troops. Being an old Divinity student I may sometimes feel the same as he but professional ethics dictate that I'm not allowed to say it.

Hello Shane. This is Eric Hackett. Last week I renewed my subscription and asked to have my renewal start with issue #73. I made a mistake. Could you begin my subscription with #74? I already have #73. Should I send back # 73? Please advise.
Eric

P.S. By the way I had Charismatic on top like probably everyone else who follows the guidelines.

Dear Mary

Again, thank your dad for the Kentucky Derby. I keyed our number one horse, CHARISMATIC with the right combination and hit the TRIFECTA! ($5,866)

Best regards,
Bob Cotton

Doc Comments: No need to thank me. YOU followed directions and YOU did the work and made the best. Thank YOU!

While nobody can make a living on Triple Crown races or the Breeders' Cup it still doesn't hurt to win them. What hurts both you and myself is when you get all excited about winning them, have the horse on top (if you enter it off its last line) and then LOSE by not betting it.

However, my own hurt is greatly diminished when I get so much feedback from those who win the Derby once a year and many other races on a daily basis and on 20 race cycles.

I offer my heartfelt thanks to all of you who so considerately sent me your notes and readouts. Little gestures like this from you are very big with me and are truly appreciated.

Let me also express my thanks to those who sent hams, whiskey, cigars, etc. as gifts thanking me for the win.

As I've done with K.C. Jones from Arkansas, I've sent a personal thank you note to all who were so generous. I don't deserve the thanks, You do ! You entered the horse and you had the nerve to bet on a 31-1 Overlay. Don't worry, I'll still smoke the cigars and sip the whiskey and I'll share the food with my family and friends.

THE PREAKNESS

A somewhat anticlimactic race with CHARISMATIC coming out on top. As per my directions, using the best Derby qualifying race for a paceline, never the Derby itself. Historically, too many Derby horses encounter Derby problems that disguise their true ability. The readouts show the race unfolding with CHARISMATIC beginning its move on in TT where he ranked 2nd. Then he poured it on and at the end of the far turn took over, his #1 Total Energy figure allowing him to hold on against MENIFEE. Exactly how I described the unfolding of the race to K.C. Jones in an instruction letter written in response to those gifts he sent me after his Derby win.

K.C. knows how to make a guy feel good. Here's his e-mail sent on the Sunday after the Preakness:

We had even more Preakness Win e-mail and readouts than we got from the Derby, but I'm not going to beat this horse to death.

Note the opening fractions - Result Chart. 22:5-45.27-110:31 (in seconds and tenths). Much too fast for the early leaders to win at a mile 3/16ths. Antley better be careful in the Belmont and watch the pace very carefully and make his move sooner or he'll end up having only a double crown. We'll be at press before the Belmont.

THE CLIENTS SPEAK
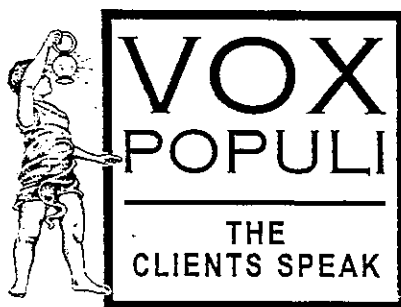

Dear O. Henry House,

Enclosed is my Pace Launcher 4 disk with all of its installations recalled. The new Synthesis is fantastic. I especially like the Quad Rater additions, the POR/POH by fraction percentage readouts are my favorite so far and a time saver. I used to do them with a calculator. So far, Synthesis with the TrackMaster download has produced winners in the top 2 BL/BL 7 out of 13 races with average mutuels of $13.82 top 3 BL/BL 9 out of 13 races with average mutuels of $12.55. This is after I hid horses with odds too low to bet.

S.R., Washington

DOC COMMENTS: Not all winners at Washington tracks are from other states.

... #2 BL/BL continues to be most profitable, am really getting in good groove right now since I've been off work (injured on job). Karen wants me to quit driving over the road and stay home and bet horses. Been averaging between $6 - $8 hundred a week since I've been off.

Also, getting great "feel" when to pass races. Confidence right now is at an all time high.
Until next time

A note from a HAPPY NEW CLIENT
Hi Mary,
...My first day at the track I came home with $300 more than I went with Thanks to Sartin Methodology.
Thank you, L.B., California

Dear Doc & All,

Thanks again for standing behind me for all these years.

Enclosed are most recent Synthesis/Wagering Form results. I've got to be extra careful now when there are strings of 4 + 5$ horses coming in a row.

Lost of fun to have the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner as such a standout on the Synthesis readings. Friends and family thought I was quite the clever one, but I told them it was SARTIN who did all the work - I just bet it.

T.O., Nevada

DOC COMMENTS: This client sent me 12 20 race cycle Wagering Decision Forms - 120 straight races. She made profit in every 20 race cycle -- She followed directions.

Subject: Fear!!!

What a destructive force fear can be. Not a revelation to you Howard! I have had three months and a bit more of fear in my personal life and guess what... yep, it has translated directly into my Synthesizing efforts! I won't bore you with the details but suffice to say all is well now and hey presto... it all works again. It's hard to believe how much this endeavour mirrors the psyche (hope that's the right word) and so it would appear to be almost essential to address that first or at least bet when harmony reigns. As you have always said: It's 80% in the mind and I've experienced it first hand! Hopefully , on an even keel now I can resume building again... until the next little hurdle (do you have hurdle racing over there?)

Hope you are well
T.B., United Kingdom

DOC COMMENTS: This lesson, learned by him the hard way, is something for all of us to understand and conquer.

Shane,

...By the way, I had Charismatic again. Don't understand the public sending Menifee off as the favorite at 2:1. Oh well, that what's so good about the public, they are so wrong so often!!

Tell your dad thanks -

D.R., California

My current program is Pace Launcher 4. Would you please send information on the latest program and the cost to update.

Also I still have Entropy II and I find it hard to believe that anything can replace it as a corollary program. I would like to Keep it.

C.E.W., New York

DOC COMMENTS: Entropy is in Synthesis. A lot of clients ignore its power. C.E.W. is one who profitably recognizes it.

Hi Shane & Doc,

...I am doing well with the syn/trkmaster program at GP and Lrl and do not want to miss an issue (of the Follow Up). The program is fantastic and the info in the One on One tape series and the Follow Up articles are great.

I was glad to see you published my e-mail messages with you and Ellis Star at TrackMaster. They are doing a great job with the data and they offer excellent customer service. I hope more clients will get on board with the Syn/trkmaster program. The program and the support from Axcis are fantastic.

Thanks for your help,

P.W., Missouri

DOC COMMENTS: This is a typical response to TrackMaster's superior service. I'm also gratified that he got so much benefit from our Video/Audio series.

Dear Mary Jr.

Hope everyone is fine and your dad is enjoying his Mag Steps*. Enclosed my printout of Preakness. Had SuperFecta. Didn't bet it. Box 4 horses for "E" and "T". The 50-1 shot showed 5-2 on my BL/BL.

Had:

$10 to win #6	18.20	91.00
$10 to win #11	lost
$10 across WPS #4	18.20	91.00
$24 4 horse Box "E" 11,6,4,5		47.60 needed #4 in there
$24 4 horse Box "T" 11,6,4,5		1024.00
$10 Show 4 horse	18.20	91.00
		$1344.00

Thank you. Best day I ever had. I use my postal jewelry (rubber band around my wrist). I pop it a few times - need to get better. Should have had S.F. - 18,000 dollars. I had it... Again every one at work laughed at me - I told them #4 - hot horse....

OH BOY - Thank you!

C.K., Texas

PS Hope you don't take this as bragging. I work hard on this. I will improve more.

DOC COMMENTS: He has every right to brag about his Wagercapping.

The *"Mag Steps" are magnetic insteps he sent me to keep my feet from aching. They work!

Hi again Shane,

GOOD NEWS... 1st race at OP, I caught #5, Gentle the horse paid - hold your hat on - $251.40 to win and $51.80 to place. BL/BL - Like the Doc says "don't let these longshots get away".

Thanx

G.M., New Jersey

I would like to thank Doc for his response on pacelines and picking the right horse, to stop using too many horses, and do not use the Vector Graph as a ranking order, as it said on page 67 of the workbook the Video Audio. Of course, it takes some of us longer to get it after we read it

Thank you,

R.R., California

Pablito e Pablo,

I feel like a broken record saying it again– the Derby was easy– Charismatic on top! (if you disregard the dosage numbers, which haven't performed very well in the last decade or so.) At worst others might have got him second or a rare third.

Also had Charismatic and the Place & Show horses in the top 3 or 4 depending on line selection. When using the Derby lines or all Derby horses the top 3 Preakness finishers come up in reverse order. Otherwise, had them 2, 3, 4 with a questionable Adonis on top in my 'best of last 3' analysis.

See y'all in New York*

P.B., California

* Belmont

DOC COMMENTS: Good outcome. Incorrect Paceline selection. Always use the best qualifying PRE Derby paceline for Triple Crown races. Horses must not be penalized for problems incurred in the Derby.

Dear Doc

I am so excited about Synthesis - it is a great program. I would have never believed that so many double digit horses would be possible to get but they are getable. I have enclosed the results of many of those kinds of winners. You will see horses that paid $20, $30 and $40 or more.

I am still in the learning stages with Syn but have made good progress. I have only used Syn for a couple of months. There is so much potential that I can hardly hold back my excitement. Doc, this is a wonderful program that is easy to use and understand.

Read the Follow Ups and listen to my (tapes) as often as I can. Even though I have read and listened to the tapes several times I still find little things that I did not catch before.

B.N., Louisiana

Dear Doc, Shane, Mary and all the staff,

Let me now say that Synthesis is, without a doubt, the ultimate in handicapping programs. I started down this road nearly ten years ago with Scott's "Investing at the Racetrack", then bought a handheld armed with a velocity program based on Tom Brohamer's fine book which was, of course, only an extension of your Methodology. Having had good success with that I joined your group and purchased Synergetic Match Up from you several years ago. Kind of got away from racing for the past couple of years but having just retired at 55 I'm back for good.

My wins come from my top 3, almost exclusively and that along with the Early/Late and a quick look at the pace match up give me a picture that is meaningful. I stress, FOR ME, since I believe and as you have often said, that you must make the Methodology and the program you use your own. The answer is there.

For the last two weeks playing four tracks (no more than 2 a day) my ROI has stayed above 70% the last three days (only playing 1 track a day - Hia & Spt) I handicapped 19 races with the winner coming out of my top three 19 times. I played 16 of the races and won 15.

One additional thing, I have Synthesis installed on a Gateway notebook that I take with to the OTB. I have found that the scratch of a top horse can alter your printout dramatically. Being able to re-look at the race without the horse is much more meaningful than simply drawing a line through it on your printout. This has allowed me to cash tickets that I would have otherwise have torn up.

My thanks for all your work, for a great program, for your tapes and publications and also a personal thanks to Sam Wada.

B.Z., Alabama

DOC COMMENTS: A very gratifying letter. When he says pace match up, he is talking about the Match Up Graph in Synthesis.

Dear Doc, Shane & Staff,

Please renew my subscription to the Follow Up and send any that I have missed.

PL4T just keeps picking nice winners for me as the 1st place in the Kentucky Derby with #11 on top will prove. For the Doubting Thomases I am sending the Work Up sheet.

When my friends at the track asked me who I liked to win the Derby, and I told them #11, they looked at me like I came from Mars. Oh well, when they have horse racing on Mars you can bet I'll be using PL4T.

Thanks for everything

Your friend and 'pupil'

D.W. Texas

PS My wife said the program is as Charismatic as the horse was!! Sending blank check - please renew me for 2 years....

Hello all at O. Henry House -

I'm sending in my 2nd and 3rd 10 race cycle sheets. I'm so happy!! I am doing very well! I have circled the winners I had at Santa Anita.

I'm making decisions and I'm not worrying about what others say is the right thing to do. I want to do better each 20 race cycle. Again, thank you for changing my whole outlook on life. I will do better.

Thanks

AND, TO WRAP IT ALL UP, A FEW MORE WORDS OF JOY FROM OUR DERBY/PREAKNESS WINNERS...

Hello Doc,

Just to say that I am listening to and heeding your instructions. Trying hard to skip races with cheap winners that show up on my first line at Hollywood. I'm doing real well. Here's a copy of my Kentucky Derby ticket to prove it.

Subject : Kentucky Derby

Hi Shane:

I haven't written in some time. How's the Doc, yourself, and everyone at O. Henry? I hope you are keeping in good health. I just thought you'd like to know that using PL4 Trackmaster I had this very memorable of Derby winners. He came out top BL/BL at Even money with Adonis next at 9/5. Thanks to you and everyone at O. Henry again

Subject: The Derby

Hi everyone!

This is so great!. Everyone said I was crazy, but when I saw those numbers in Syn I knew to follow instructions rather than listening to the horseplayers around me... Thanks so much!!!

G.F., California

Dear O. Henry House...

Synthesis is great! My wife and I are well on the way to the down payment on the house we want. Thank you all so much.

L.O., Florida

My sincere thanks to all who wrote, e-mailed, phoned and sent gifts. We didn't have room to print all the Derby and Preakness reports and tickets - we could have dedicated the whole issue. However, I think this sampling gets the point across that winning any series of races is highly probable when directions are followed. This was stated by almost everyone: 'following directions'. Doc

E-mail from Mark Cramer:

Dear Howard,

I was going to say "hope you're recovering well from your hernia operation," but given your help from Allah, I know you're well.

Congratulation on having the Kentucky Derby winner on top on Synthesis! Next time Barry says that it's impossible to find a 500% overlay, I'll show him your printout.

Also thanks for the encouraging words about my writing. After reading your comments about C&O in various issues, I've decided to revive it as C&X. To do this, I'll be spending much more time at the races, and the Chilean or French races won't do, because the readers want to see U.S. races.

I'll be returning to Canterbury to spend at least five weeks at their live summer meet. I gave them three winners in four suggested value bets when I was a guest on March 13 there. But I think they were more impressed with what I did on Sunday, when the three horses I recommended as possible wagers were all going off at odds below fair value. I told the audience that I was going to pass, and on one occasion they say me cancel my bet when the odds drifted below fair value. I think the people who invited me were more impressed by my discipline than the winners I had.

...Finally, glad to see you're escalating the space you give to passing races.

Cheers,

Mark

DOC COMMENTS: This came several days after the Derby, before we publicized it. Mark's buddy Mike Helm has Synthesis and they're in regular communication. Since Mike is North America's top expert on Breeding and Pedigree, he must have felt that Charismatic had no breeding impediments.

GREAT TO SEE MARK HAS DECIDED TO GO BACK INTO PRINT!!! We look forward to the new C&X REPORT.

Tribute is deserved by Mike Helm and his City Minor Books. P.O. Box 176, Berkeley, CA. 94701. His Sire and Pedigree Ratings are the best on the market. Furthermore, his flow of upgrades and add-ons comes exactly as promised. Nice to find a "good guy" in this business.

The great Charlie Whittingham died recently at age 86. He was the only famous trainer I ever knew well enough to call a friend. I shall always remember him for his colorful language and reference to jockeys he didn't use as "size 3 hats." Perhaps his most sage statement is one that all of us should remember. He said, " The top three LOUSIEST handicappers are Owners, Trainers and Jockeys."
